
Contents

Acknowledgments, xvii

Abbreviations, xix

Introduction 1

1 The Economic Anatomy of Sheep and Caribou, 15

Meat Utility, 15

Comparisons between the Animals, 18

Construction of a Meat Utility Index for Anatomical Parts of Caribou and Sheep, 19

Bone Marrow and the Construction of a Marrow Index, 23

Bone Grease and the Construction of Grease Utility Indices, 32

Cultural Bias versus Objective Food Preferences, 38

2 Some General Considerations: Butchering, Kill Sites, and Recording Procedures, 47

Butchering Procedure, 48

Recorded Cases of Initial Field Butchering, 51

Caching and Secondary Field Butchering, 55

Butchering Variability, 59

Summary of Butchering Data, 60

Measuring Dismemberment, 64

- Calculating the Number of Individuals from Bone Counts*, 69
- Measuring General Utility in Realistic Terms*, 72
- Looking at the Empirical World*, 75
- Sex and Age Data*, 85
- Summary*, 87

3 Meat Storage, 91

- Dry Storage*, 91
- Butchering Procedure followed for Drying Caribou Meat*, 94
- Drying Racks*, 97
- Construction of the Drying Utility Index*, 101
- Some Empirical Material Relative to Dry Meat Stores*, 111
- Evaluating the Utility of Models and Indices*, 111
- Processing Debris from Drying Activities*, 114
- Frozen Storage*, 123

4 Food Processing and Consumption, 135

- Consumer Demand*, 135
- Food Sharing and the Distribution of Anatomical Parts to Consumers*, 139
- Consumption and Food Processing*, 144
- Patterns of Processing Bones for Marrow*, 152
- Manufacture of Bone Grease*, 157
- Manufacture of Bone Juice and Related Marrow-Processing in Summer Sites*, 163
- Summary*, 165

5 Spring, 169

- Early Spring Monitoring and Encounter Hunting*, 169
- Midspring or Migration Hunting*, 171
- Late Spring Hunting*, 178
- Spring Consumption in the Contemporary Village and in the Past*, 191
- Mobility, Spring Drying Activities, and Related Logistics*, 223
- Glimpses into the Past—Summer Storage under Mobile Conditions When Meat Was Dried for Human Consumption*, 235
- The Spring System*, 245

6 Summer, 255

Consumption in the Contemporary Village and in the Past, 257

Summer Hunting and Logistics, 265

Summer Residential Locations of the Recent Past, 320

Modeling the Summer Residential Sites, 327

Summary, 342

7 Fall, 345

Contemporary Fall Hunting Strategy, 346

Consumption and Storage in Fall Residential Locations, 369

Late Fall Sheep Hunting and the Use of Sheep in Fall Residential Sites, 406

Summary, 416

8 Winter, 425

Winter Residential Locations, 428

Modeling Faunal Contents of Winter Stores, 435

Consumer Demand and MNIs Represented in a Residential Faunal Assemblage, 447

9 Conclusions, 451

Part I: The Meaningful Analysis of Assemblage Contents, 452

Part II: Toward the Meaningful Analysis of Patterning in Assemblage Characteristics, Location, and Responsiveness to General System Change, 482

References, 499

Index, 503