7. VERBAL COMPLEMENTS	1
7.1. Introduction	1
7.2. The semantics of event integration	2
7.2.1. Preamble	2
7.2.2. Sub-dimensions of event integration	3
7.2.2.1. Semantic and syntactic definitions: manipulation and P-C-U verbs	3
7.2.2.2. Implicativity, co-temporality and control	6
7.2.2.3. Intent, control and agentivity	8
7.2.2.4. Control and temporal contiguity	11
7.2.2.5. Direct contact and spatio-temporal contiguity	11
7.2.2.6. Resistance, coercive effort and independence	13
7.2.2.7. Event integration vs. causation	14
7.2.2.8. Referential cohesion and event integration	15
7.2.2.9. Authority and verbal manipulation	17
7.2.3. From manipulation to preference to epistemics	18
7.2.4. Tense agreement and integrated perspective	20
7.2.5. From indirect to direct quote: The de-coupling of point-of-view	21
7.2.6. Summary	23
7.3. The syntax of clause integration	23
7.3.1. Preamble	23
7.3.2. Verb adjacency or co-lexicalization	24
7.3.3. Case-marking of the complement-clause subject	25
7.3.4. Verb morphology: Degree of finiteness	26
7.3.5. Physical separation: Subordinators and pause	27
7.4. Modality verbs	28
7.4.1. Definition of modality verbs	28
7.4.2. Semantic dimensions	30
7.4.2.1. Referential cohesion and event integration	30

7.4.2.2.	Implicativity	30
7.4.2.3.	Strength of intent	31
7.4.2.4.	How-to complements	32
7.4.2.5.	From self-directed intent to other-directed preference	32
7.5.	For-to complements	33
7.6.	Conditional complements	35

9. RELATIVE CLAUSES		107
9.1. Introduction		107
9.2. Functional aspects of relativization		107
9.2.1.	Restrictive relative clauses	107
9.2.1.1.	Preamble	107
9.2.1.2.	Referent tracking, grounding and presupposition	108
9.2.1.3.	Referring-indefinite heads and cataphoric (anticipatory) grounding	110
9.2.1.4.	The use of RRCs to ground frame-based referents	114
9.2.1.5.	Non-referring head nouns and strict co-reference	115
9.2.1.6.	Restrictive REL-clauses with semi-referring heads	116
9.2.2.	Non-restrictive relative clauses	117
9.2.2.1.	The logic of restriction	117
9.2.2.2.	Presupposition, assertion and challenge	118
9.2.2.3.	Coherence and grounding	118
9.2.2.4.	Restriction and reference	119
9.2.2.5.	Generic head nouns and topicality	120
9.2.2.6.	Restriction and unique reference	121

9.3. The syntax or relativization	121
9.3.1. Embedding inside a noun phrase	121
9.3.2. Deletion under identity and case-role recoverability	124
9.3.3. The relative pronoun strategy	126
9.3.4. The relative subordinator strategy	127
9.3.5. The gap strategy	127
9.3.6. Indirect object relativization: Prepositions as clues	129
9.3.7. Possessive REL-clauses	131
9.3.7.1. Standard strategies	131
9.3.7.2. The anaphoric pronoun strategy	133
9.3.7.3. Relativization with complex locative prepositions	135
9.3.8. Relativization of adverbial roles: Semantically-specific head nouns	135
9.3.9. Some problems with relative pronouns	136
9.3.9.1. 'Who' vs. 'whom'	136
9.3.9.2. Animacy and relative pronouns	137
9.4. The syntax of non-restrictive REL-clauses	137
9.4.1. Parenthetical clauses, co-reference and coherence	137
9.4.2. Morphology of NRRCs	138
9.4.3. NRRCs, adverbial case-roles and reference	139
9.4.4. Double-headed parenthetical REL-clauses	140
9.5. Headless relative clauses	141
9.6. Subject REL-clauses with the main verb 'be'	144
9.7. Extraposed relative clauses	145
9.7.1. Restrictiveness	146
9.7.2. Definiteness and reference	147
9.7.3. Extraposition and presentative function	148
9.7.4. Extraposition and syntactic complexity	150
9.8. Relativization and syntactic complexity	151
9.8.1. Preamble	151
9.8.2. Ross's complex-NP constraint	151
9.8.3. Repeated center embedding	160
9.9. Non-finite relative clauses	161
9.9.1. Preamble	161
9.9.2. Complement-like structure	162
9.9.3. REL-clause-like meaning	162

9.9.4.	Problems of co-reference	164
9.9.5	Why the equi-subject condition?	167
