

Contents

Table of Cases	xiii
Table of Instruments	xvii
 Introduction	 1
Mr Hirst and Mr Davis	1
The Methodological Approach of this Book	5
The Core Argument of the Book	10
The Contribution of this Book	12
The Proliferation of International Law	14
The Structure of the Book	17
 1. Authority and International Law:
The State of the Field	21
Introduction	21
The Standard View: Consent as the Basis of Binding Quality	24
Constitutionalist and Pluralist Conceptions of the Authority of International Law	33
Self-Interest and the Authority of International Law	42
Democratic Legitimacy and International Law	44
The Authority of International Law: The Need for Appraisal	46
 2. The Authority of International Law:
A Doctrinal Account	49
Introduction	49
The Conceptual Baggage of Domestic Law	51
Re-Defining the Authority of International Law	64
Stage I: Back to the Drawing Board: The Initial Situation	66
Stage II: A Relational Notion of Authority	74
Strong, Weak, and Rebuttable Duties	76
Ius Cogens and the Authority of International Law	83
Violations of Strong, Weak, and Rebuttable Duties	84
Conclusion	86

3. Minimal Deference and Domestic Political Authority	87
Introduction	87
The Nature of Domestic Political Authority	88
Objections to the Authority of International Law	91
Preliminary Objections: Traditional Sovereignty with Normative Absolutism	92
Qualified Objections to the Authority of International Law	96
The Way Out: Consent as a Procedural Value of International Law	101
Customary International Law and the Participation of Political Organs	112
Taking Stock: The Duty of Political Authorities to Take International Law into Account	114
Dynamic International Law and the Risk of Overriding the Authority of Political Organs	115
In Defence of the Authority Of Dynamic International Law	118
Mr Davis Revisited	124
Conclusion	126
 4. Beyond Monism and Dualism	129
Introduction	129
The Domestic Judge and International Law	130
The Default Position: The Relativity of Monism and Dualism	134
Monism and Dualism: The Origins	137
The Formal Variant of Monism And Dualism	140
The Ideological Variant of Monism and Dualism	143
Beyond Monism and Dualism: Towards a Reflexive Authority of International Law before Domestic Courts	146
Domestic Judges and Strong Duties	147
Domestic Judges and the Duty to Respect	150
Domestic Judges and Rebuttable Duties	152
Reflective International Law Authority and Domestic Law	155
Conclusion	156
 5. The Practical Authority of International Law: An Appraisal	159
Introduction	159
A Better Account than the Standard Account?	160
Hybrid Consent and the Authority of International Law	162
Indeterminacy and Multiple Authority Claims	164

Contents

xi

Constitutionalism and Pluralism Revisited
Is Relative Authority Monism in Disguise?
Conclusion

171
173
175

Conclusion

177

Bibliography

181

Index

197