

CONTENTS

Table of Cases	xv
Table of Statutes	xxxiii
Table of Other Primary Legal Sources	xxxv
List of Abbreviations	xxxvii

Introduction	1
--------------	---

SECTION I. The External and Internal Dimensions

1. The External Dimension—Law, Courts, and the Court of Justice of the EU	9
I. Introduction	9
II. The Singular Nature of European Courts	10
III. Extra-Legal Factors	16
IV. Institutional Constraints and the Court of Justice	34
V. Normative Implications	48
VI. Conclusions	53
2. The Internal Dimension—The Fundamental Freedoms’ Normative Foundations	55
I. Introduction	55
II. Normative Foundations Common to All Market Freedoms	55
III. The Specific Normative Foundations of Individual Market Freedoms	63
IV. European Citizenship	71
V. Conclusion	83

SECTION II. The Freedoms

3. The Concept of Restriction on Free Movement—An Introduction	87
I. Introduction	87
II. A Bit of Legal History	87
III. Discriminatory Approaches	89
IV. Economic Due Process	99
V. Typological Approaches	103
VI. Access to Market	106
VII. Conclusion	114
4. Restricting Free Movement Rights—Unpacking the Normative Foundations	117
I. Introduction	117
II. What Do the Market Freedoms Do?	118
III. What Ought the Market Freedoms To Be Doing?	123
IV. Towards a Contextualized Perspective	124
V. Conclusion	135
5. Re-framing the Concept of Restriction	137
I. Introduction	137
II. Institutional Context and Free Movement Law	137
III. A More Comprehensive Description	146
IV. Normative Implications	166
V. Conclusion	172
6. The Fundamental Freedom's Scope—Beyond Restriction	175
I. Introduction	175
II. Cross-Border Movement	176
III. Economic Aim	188
IV. From Fundamental Freedoms to Rights of Free Movement—the Connecting Factor	193
V. Private Action and Free Movement—The Question of Horizontal Effect	200

VI. Some Normative Suggestions	214
VII. Conclusion	223
Conclusion	225
Bibliography	231
Index	255