

Contents

List of Illustrations	viii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xv
Note on Transliteration	xix
PROLOGUE Sergiev Posad: Russian Orthodoxy Resurgent	1
One The End of the Atheist Empire	14
Two A New Hope	36
Three Rebuilding Holy Moscow	70
Four Accursed Questions: Who Is to Blame?	101
Five Irreconcilable Differences: Orthodoxy and the West	141
Six The Babylonian Legacy: Exiles, Martyrs, and Collaborators	181
Seven A Faith-Based Army	207
EPILOGUE Twenty Years After: From Party to Patriarch	242
Appendix A Translated Documents	255
Appendix B Authors' Letter to the New York Times , May 27, 1990	261
Notes	263
Select Bibliography	309
Index	315