

Contents

Acknowledgements	page viii
Introduction	1
1 Traditional Approaches to the Family	14
Late nineteenth-century sociological perspectives	15
Engels: family, private property and the state	18
The twentieth-century functional family	20
Companionate marriage	23
Community and kinship studies	25
Constructions of race in family studies	26
Feminism and families	29
Conclusions	32
2 Individualization, Intimacy and Family Life	34
Individualization and changing families	35
Doing and displaying families	41
‘Unconventional’ family relationships	45
Same-sex intimacies and families of choice	47
Minority ethnic kinship ties	51
Conclusions	53
3 Parenting Practices and Values	55
Changing ideas about parenthood	55
Morality and motherhood	58
Teenage mothers	62
Traditional and new models of fatherhood	64
Fatherhood after divorce	67
Minority ethnic parenting	68

	Gay and lesbian parenting	71
	Conclusions	73
4	The Changing Nature of Childhood	76
	Past ideas about childhood	77
	Children's agency	78
	Children and divorced families	81
	Childhood, consumption and class	83
	Children, new media and the home	88
	The privatization of childhood	90
	Conclusions	92
5	Families and Ageing Societies	94
	Changing dynamics of ageing and family life in western societies	95
	Older people and patterns of family support	96
	Gender differences among older people	101
	Same-sex relationships among older people	102
	Globalization, old age and traditional kinship customs	105
	Conclusions	111
6	Globalization, Migration and Intimate Relations	114
	Gendered migration patterns	115
	Globalization, migration and family care	116
	Marriage strategies and mobility	122
	Commercially negotiated marriage	124
	Sustaining cultural traditions in diasporic settings	127
	Internet dating and 'mail-order brides'	129
	Conclusions	132
7	Families, Fertility and Populations	135
	Governments and family planning	135
	Romania's pro-natalist policy under Ceausescu	137
	India's preference for sons	140
	China's 'one-child' policy	145
	Demographic deficit in developed nations	149
	Conclusions	152

8 Families and New Reproductive Technologies	154
Assisted conception and relatedness	155
Approaches to new reproductive technologies	156
Donor insemination and the regulation of families	159
Views on infertility treatment among the South
Asian diasporas	163
Donor technologies in the Muslim Middle East	166
Commercial surrogacy in India	169
Conclusions	172
 9 New Directions: Personal Life, Family and
Friendship	174
The politics of family values	175
Family diversity and personal life	179
Friends and personal communities	182
New intimacies	184
Global and economic dimensions of intimacy and
family	187
 Notes	191
Bibliography	193
Index	230