

Table of Contents

Table of Cases	xiii
Table of Legislation & Treaties	xviii
List of Abbreviations	xxi
Notes	xxiii
 Introduction	 1
 1 The Unasked Question	 9
1 Adversarial Adjudication and the Self-Represented	11
2 Self-Representation and Access to Court	15
3 Self-Representation and the Administration of Justice	22
Conclusion	26
 2 English and American Case Law	 27
1 English Case Law	28
2 American Case Law	33
3 Criticism of Faretta	42
4 Curtailments of the Faretta Right	50
Conclusion	62
 3 The International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia	 63
1 The Faretta Rationale Taken Further	63
2 The Spectre of the Star Chamber	66
3 Self-Representation at the Appellate Level	69
Conclusion	72
 4 Simplifying Legal Language	 73
1 The Questionable Benefits of Plain English	75
2 Precision, Redundancy, Details	83
3 Can Technical Language Be Avoided?	90
Conclusion	94
 5 The Judge's Mantle and the Advocate's Robe	 95
1 Potential Benefits of Judicial Passivity	95
2 Judicial Treatment of LIPs	100
3 Lenient Enforcement of Procedural Requirements	103
4 More Active Judicial Assistance	108
5 Lessons from the German System	118
Conclusion	125

6 Lay Representation and McKenzie Friends	127
1 Lay Assistance in Limited Forms	128
2 Lay Representation	129
3 Growing Confidence in McKenzie Friends	132
4 McKenzie Friends or Mandatory Counsel?	134
5 The Merits of a Right to Lay Representation	136
Conclusion	138
7 Litigants as Authors of their Lives	139
1 The Autonomy Rationale	139
2 A Legitimate Infringement on Autonomy	142
3 Self-Representation Is Not a Special Choice	144
4 Procedural Rules as Optional Rather Than Restrictive	149
5 Autonomy Is Served by a Procedural System	158
6 The Burdens of Litigation	165
Conclusion	168
8 Litigant Satisfaction	169
1 Limitations of the Empirical Findings	170
2 Magnitude and Justifiability	175
3 Expressive Value of Participation	179
Conclusion	180
9 Reconsidering the Right to Self-Representation	183
1 Reinterpreting a Defendant's Right 'To Defend Himself in Person or through Legal Assistance'	184
2 A Right to Effective Participation	189
3 The Problem of Client-Lawyer Cooperation	192
4 Mandatory Representation in Civil Cases	196
Conclusion	203
Conclusion	205
Bibliography	209
Index	221