

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Foreword.....	ix
Nora Paul
Introduction: Why Ethnography?	1
Chris Paterson
PART ONE: Researching the Changing Nature of Media Production
1. Inventing Online Journalism: A Constructivist Approach to the Development of Online News.....	15
David Domingo
2. Ethnographic Media Production Research in a Digital Environment	29
Roel Puijk
PART TWO: New Media, New Routines?
3. News Production in an Irish Online Newsroom: Practice, Process, and Culture	45
Anthony Cawley
4. Print and Online Newsrooms in Argentinean Media: Autonomy and Professional Identity	61
Edgardo Pablo García
5. News Tuning and Content Management: An Observation Study of Old and New Routines in German Online Newsrooms	77
Thorsten Quandt

6. Maximize the Medium: Assessing Obstacles to Performing Multimedia Journalism in Three U.S. Newsrooms	99
Jody Brannon
7. When Immediacy Rules: Online Journalism Models in Four Catalan Online Newsrooms	113
David Domingo
8. Online Journalism in China: Constrained by Politics, Spirited by Public Nationalism	127
Johan Lagerkvist
9. Do Online Journalists Belong in the Newsroom? A Belgian Case of Convergence	143
Vinciane Colson & François Heinderyckx
PART THREE: Reinventing Journalism?
10. Ethnography of Newsroom Convergence	157
Jane B. Singer
11. The Active Audience: Transforming Journalism from Gatekeeping to Gatewatching	171
Axel Bruns
12. The Routines of Blogging	185
Wilson Lourey & John Latta
Epilogue: Toward a Sociology of Online News	199
Mark Deuze
References	211
Contributors	229
Index	233