Contents

Foreword ix
List of figures x

1 Introduction 1

2 Stereotypes, prejudice, economic deprivation and discrimination 12
Introduction 12
Stereotypes, prejudice and personal contacts 12
Stereotypes 13
Metastereotypes 18
Prejudice 18
Personal contacts 19
Economic deprivation and discrimination 23
Contact and social isolation 24
Social isolation 25
Contact and prejudice 25
Economic position and relative deprivation 27
Economic position 27
Relative deprivation 29
Conclusions 31

3 Threats and their consequences 37
Introduction 37
Types of threat 37
Some examples of threats 38
Social threats: an analysis 41
Cognitive effects 47
Injustice 48
Negative attitudes 50

The role of education 52
Uncertainty 54
Emotional effects 59
Fear 59
Moral emotions 59
Anger 60
Aggression and revenge 61
Contempt and disgust 63
Hate 65
Conclusions 66

4 Culture, social climate and catalyst events 73
Introduction 73
Culture 73
Cultural values 73
Global political-cultural climate 78
Cultural symbols 79
Social climate 80
Material factors 80
Economic and social conditions 82
Catalyst events 87
Conclusions 88

5 Individual factors: personality and demographics 93
Introduction 93
Personality 93
Abnormal personality 93
Authoritarianism and social dominance orientation 94
Other personality traits 101
Demographics 103
Socioeconomic status 103
Age 106
Gender 107
Marital status 110
Conclusions 111

6 Social identity, polarization and collective action 117
Introduction 117
Social identity, self-esteem and belongingness 119
Self-esteem 119
Belongingness 122

Outgroup homogeneity 124
Social identity and emotions 127
Majorities, minorities and social identity 132
Threat and social identity 134
Threat, values and polarization 134
Threat and social action 136
Conclusions 138

7 Social identity, ideology and religion 146
Introduction 146
Ideology, uncertainty and support for extremes 147
Ideology and morality 150
Right-wing ideology and extremism 152
Left-wing ideology and extremism 155
Religion, identity and ideology 157
Fundamentalism and radicalization 160
Religion and terrorism 162
Martyrdom and suicide tactics 167
Conclusions 168

8 From extremism to violence: small group processes, social support and justification 174
Introduction 174
Group polarization 174
Groupthink 176
Isolation and superiority 180
The Internet and isolation 182
Leaders 185
Social support, rewards and role models 186
Social support 186
Social and material rewards 192
Role models and imitation 193
Justification processes 195
Dehumanization 195
Attribution of responsibility 198
Conclusions 200

9 Paths to and from violent extremism 208
Introduction 208
Group performance and violence 208
Violent versus non-violent groups 209

Process models 214
Disengagement and exit from terrorism 216
The decline and end of terrorist groups 218
Interventions to combat radicalism and terrorism 225
Prevention and resilience 228
General interventions 231
Conclusions 233

10 Summary and conclusions 239

Introduction 239
Summary 239
Threats as a starting point 239
Threats: cultural and personal factors 242
Social identity, ideology and radicalization 245
From radicalization to violent groups 247
Three forms of radicalism and terrorism 252
De-radicalization programmes 253
Where do we stand? 253
Aspects of terrorism research 256
Wrong questions 256
Initial versus later stages of radicalization 257
Explanation versus prediction 258
Terrorism, hysteria and civil rights 259
Conclusions 260

Index 263