

Contents

Introduction by Eugene Kennedy	ix
Acknowledgments	xvii
Editor's Preface	xix
CHAPTER 1 Freedom in Daily Life	1
The Spirit of Freedom and the Spirit of Truth
The Truth about Timely Issues
The Love of Truth is Indivisible
Freedom and Autonomy
Slaves and Rebels
The Community of the Free
A Universalist Ethics
CHAPTER 2 Liberty and Authority	32
The Meaning of Liberty
Authority and Liberty
Totalitarianism and Liberty
CHAPTER 3 Freedom and Community	63
Alienation versus Integration
Servitude
Exploitation versus Integration

CHAPTER 4	Autonomy and Authority	84
	The Imperialistic Tendency of Authority
	Freedom and Law
	Freedom and Organization
	Society and Contemplation
CHAPTER 5	Political Society	114
	Coercion as a Characteristic of Political Society
	Political Society Defined
	The Good of Political Society
CHAPTER 6	Pessimism and the Philosophy of Progress	145
	The Romantic Philosophy of Progress
	Disillusioned Optimists
	A Pessimistic Theory of Progress
	Bibliography	193
	Index	195