

Contents

List of Figures VII

Introduction 1

Phenomenology, Architecture and Philosophy 1

The Guiding Question 5

Outline of the Work 7

1 Knowledge and Building 12

Architect and Engineer 12

Works and Meanings 23

The Space of Appearance 29

Rhetoric and the Engineering Ideal 33

2 Building and Phenomenon 39

Three Problems: Bearing Reference, Time and Encounter 39

Five Gestures of Phenomenological Philosophy 50

The Problem of the World 68

3 Phenomenon and World 71

The Pyramid and the Labyrinth 71

The Labyrinth of the Natural Attitude 74

Obscurity, Transcendent and Immanent 82

4 At the Edge of the World 96

The Art of Suspension 96

The Suspended Labyrinth 103

The Edge of the World 116

5 World and Thing 122

Questioning Thingness 122

Adumbration, Sensation and Movement 130

Orientation, World and Spatiality 142

The Dimensions of Orientation 149

6 Thing and Built Space 159

The Idea of an Exemplary Phenomenon 159

The Concept of Built Space and a Skeptical Objection 164

The Phenomenality of Built Space	168
Access and the Space of Encounter	176
Appearance and Making	184
The Problem of Built Space	192

7 Built Space and Expression 194

Towards the Problem of Expression	194
From Textual to Hodological Expression	207
Expressivity, Event and Presence	216

8 Expression and Presence 219

Spent Light	219
Image-Consciousness (Bildbewusstsein)	222
Presence and Complexity	230
The Presence of Built Space as Being-Rendered	239
The Spent Light of the Built	245

Conclusion: Towards a Phenomenological-Anthropological Vocabulary of the Built World 249

The Idea of a Vocabulary	249
From Confrontation to Continuity	254
From the Defined to the Possible	256
From Interpretation to Access	258
From Reading to Moving	261
From Closed to Open	265

Bibliography of Works Cited 271

Name Index 281

Subject Index 283