

Contents

Acknowledgments

ix

PART I. Studying Sexualities over the Life Course

Introduction: Sexualities over the Life Course: The Development of a Perspective 3
John DeLamater and Laura M. Carpenter

1 Studying Gendered Sexualities over the Life Course: A Conceptual Framework 23
Laura M. Carpenter and John DeLamater

PART II. Sexualities in Childhood and Adolescence

2 Childhood Sexuality: Exploring Culture as Context 45
Jeffry W. Thigpen

3 Sexuality Development in Adolescence 70
Stephen T. Russell, Kali S. Van Campen, and Joel A. Muraco

4 The Life Course Consequences of Childhood Sexual Assault: Effects on Relationship Formation and Intimate Violence across Relationships 88
Kristin Carbone-Lopez

PART III. Sexualities from Young Adulthood through Midlife

5. A Meta-Analysis on the Relationship between Parental Divorce Family Structures and Adolescents' Attitudes and Behaviors Regarding Premarital Intercourse 109
William Jeynes

6	Hooking Up and Opting Out: Negotiating Sex in the First Year of College Lisa Wade and Caroline Heldman	128
7	The Symbolic Power of Civil Marriage on the Sexual Life Histories of Gay Men Adam Isaiah Green	146
PART IV. Turning Points throughout the Life Course
8	U.S. Colonialism, Migration, and Sexualities: The Filipino American Case Yen Le Espiritu	163
9	Starting Over: Dating Risks and Sexual Health among Midlife Women after Relationship Dissolution Bronwen Lichtenstein	180
10	Secrets and Magic Pills: Constructing Masculinity and Sexual “Normalcy” Following Spinal Cord Injury Alexis A. Bender	198
PART V. Sexualities from Midlife to Later Life
11	Reproductive History as Social Context: Exploring How Women Talk about Menopause and Sexuality at Midlife Heather E. Dillaway	217
12	Sexual Expression over the Life Course: Results from Three Landmark Surveys Aniruddha Das, Linda J. Waite, and Edward O. Laumann	236
13	Exploring Embodied Aging and Ageism among Old Lesbians and Gay Men Kathleen F. Slevin and Christine E. Mowery	260
14	Pleasure in Old Age Meika Loe	278

PART VI. Conclusion

15 Toward an Interdisciplinary Science of Lifelong Sexualities for the Twenty-First Century 299
John DeLamater and Laura M. Carpenter

Bibliography 317

About the Contributors 349

Index 353

would ever come to fruition without the hard work of many individuals, and this is especially true of edited volumes. We would first and foremost like to thank the accomplished scholars who contributed their original research to this volume. Quite simply, this book would not exist without them. Nor would it exist without the work of so many and such varied theories and empirical inquiries launched and developed the study of sexualities over the life course; many of them are cited in the introduction.

Thanks also go to the scholars who participated in our panel on "Sexuality and the Life Course" at the 2007 annual meeting of the American Sociological Association but who were not able to contribute to this volume. Elizabeth P. Burges, Denise Donnelly, Gloria Gonzales-López, and Patricia Koch, Linda Nack, Keji Ueno, Paisley Corak, and Rich Savin-Williams kindly agreed us to the outstanding work of other scholars in the field.

At New York University Press, we have been lucky to have Executive Editor Rose Kehler and Editorial Assistant Aileen Amos advising us every step of the way. The "Intersections" series editors Michael Kimmel and Sizunna Johnson have also lent their support to this ambitious project. Thanks, too, to Michael Pawlowski at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, without whom we would be no bibliography.

We would additionally like to thank Constance A. Nathanson, Young J. Kim, and Pauly Agres, who sparked and nourished Laura's interest in aging and the life course. Laura is deeply grateful for comments and advice from Elizabeth A. Armstrong, Dena Beaton, Karen Campbell, Monica J. Casper, Jacqueline Johnson, Judith Lorber, Amanda Neftzger, Richard Patt, Jennifer Reich, and seminar participants at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, Columbia University, Drexel School of Public Health, and Emory University. The NIMH Science Research Council sexuality Research Fellowship Program and the National Institute of Aging generously funded Laura's postdoctoral fellowship. Finally, Laura is grateful for the wisdom, support, and love of her