
Contents

Translator's Preface	xi
Abbreviations to Frequently Cited Works	xix
Introduction: The Question of Incarnation	3
1 The Reversal of Phenomenology
§1. Object of Phenomenology: The Question of "Appearance."	22
§2. The Initial Indeterminacy of the Phenomenological Presuppositions of Phenomenology. The "Principles of Phenomenology."	25
§3. The Prejudice Hidden in the Presuppositions of Phenomenology. The Ruinous Reduction of All "Appearance" to the World's Appearing.	30
§4. The Crisis of Phenomenality in Heidegger. The Ontological Destitution of the World's Appearing.	36
§5. The Criterion of Language. The Breakthrough and Limits of the Phenomenological Interpretation of Language.	41
§6. The Paradox of the "World" as a Power to Derealize.	44
§7. The Now Crucial Question of the Impression, Understood as Founding Reality. The Problem of Its Phenomenological Status. Intentionality and Impression.	47
§8. When the Impression Comes outside Itself and Is Destroyed in the Temporal Flow.	51
§9. The Origin of the "Originary Impression." The Inevitable Reference of the Phenomenology of the Impression to the Phenomenology of Life.	55
§10. The Originary Passivity of the Impression, and Its "Passion" in Life's Transcendental Affectivity. The Living Present.	59
§11. The Question of Originary Appearing and Descartes's Cogito. Three Fundamental Questions It Involves.	64