

Contents

Preface	ix
List of figures	xi
List of tables	xii
List of contributors	xiii
Acknowledgements	xv

Part I	Nordic health care systems: balancing stability and change	1
one	Introduction: the Nordic model of health care	3
	Jon Magnussen, Karsten Vrangbæk, Richard B. Saltman and Pål E. Martinussen two	Health care reform: the Nordic experience	21
	Pål E. Martinussen and Jon Magnussen three	The political process of restructuring Nordic health systems	53
	Karsten Vrangbæk
four	Looking forward: future policy issues	78
	Richard B. Saltman and Karsten Vrangbæk

Part II	Nordic health systems: key issues	105 five	The changing political governance structures of Nordic health care systems Terje P. Hagen and Karsten Vrangbæk	107 six	Meeting rising public expectations: the changing roles of patients and citizens Ulrika Winblad and Ånen Ringard	126 seven	The changing autonomy of the Nordic medical professions Peter K. Jespersen and Sirpa Wrede	151 eight	Maintaining fiscal sustainability in the Nordic countries Clas Rehnberg, Jon Magnussen and Kalevi Luoma	180 nine	Harnessing diversity of provision Unto Häkkinen and Pia M. Jonsson	198 ten	Changing perceptions of equity and fairness Johan Calltorp and Meri Larivaara	214 eleven	Reforming primary health care Allan Krasnik and Bård Paulsen	233
twelve	Addressing the dual goals of improving health and reducing health inequalities Signild Vallgård and Juhani Lehto	255 thirteen	Changing demands for institutional management Lars Erik Kjekshus	274 fourteen	The European Union: single market pressures Dorte S. Martinsen and Paula Blomqvist	294 fifteen	The Icelandic health care system Tinna L. Ásgeirsdóttir	316
	Index	331