

Contents

Contributors	page ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: Transatlantic Perspectives on Capital Punishment: National Identity, the Death Penalty, and the Prospects for Abolition	1
Austin Sarat and Jürgen Martschukat
PART I: WHAT IS A PENALTY OF DEATH: CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN CONTEXT
1 The Green, Green Grass of Home: Capital Punishment and the Penal System from a Long-Term Perspective	17
Pieter Spierenburg
2 Did Anyone Die Here?: Legal Personalities, the Supermax, and the Politics of Abolition	47
Colin Dayan
3 Capital Punishment as Homeowner's Insurance: The Rise of the Homeowner Citizen and the Fate of Ultimate Sanctions in Both Europe and the United States	78
Jonathan Simon
PART II: ON THE MEANING OF DEATH AND PAIN IN EUROPE AND THE UNITED STATES: VIEWING, WITNESSING, UNDERSTANDING
4 The Witnessing of Judgment: Between Error, Mercy, and Vindictiveness	109
Evi Girling

5	Unframing the Death Penalty: Transatlantic Discourse on the Possibility of Abolition and the Execution of Saddam Hussein	126
	Kathryn A. Heard
6	Executions and the Debate over Abolition in France and the United States	150
	Simon Grivet
 PART III: ABOLITIONIST DISCOURSES, ABOLITIONIST STRATEGIES, ABOLITIONIST DILEMMAS: TRANSATLANTIC PERSPECTIVES
7	Civilized Rebels: Death-Penalty Abolition in Europe as Cause, Mark of Distinction, and Political Strategy	173
	Andrew Hammel
8	The Death of Dignity	204
	Timothy V. Kaufman-Osborn
9	Sovereignty and the Unnecessary Penalty of Death: European and United States Perspectives	236
	Jon Yorke
10	European Policy on the Death Penalty	268
	Agata Fijalkowski
11	The Long Shadow of the Death Penalty: Mass Incarceration, Capital Punishment, and Penal Policy in the United States	292
	Marie Gottschalk
	Index	323