

CONTENTS

■	Introduction	7
■	1. Development tendencies from the 1990s up to 2002 Martin Potůček	9
	1.1. Population development, family, health care Miroslava Mašková	10
	1.2. Social structure and cohesion – the reform of social policy Martin Potůček	17
	1.3. Value orientations of Czech society Libor Prudký	20
	1.4. Economic development Jana Marková	21
	1.5. Political development – from an authoritative system towards democracy Martin Potůček	26
	1.6. The Czech Republic heading towards entry into the European Union Jana Marková	29
■	2. People in society	31
	2.1. People in view of the quality and sustainability of life indicators Peter Mederly, Pavel Nováček, Ján Topercer	31
	2.2. Educational system and skills Arnošt Veselý, Jaroslav Kalous	40
	2.3. Economy, labor and employment policy Pavel Kuchař, Soňa Jelínková, Martin Potůček	49
	2.4. Social policy and vulnerable groups Bohumila Čabanová, Gabriela Munková, Petra Hejnová, Petra Kopecká, Olga Šmídová	61
	2.5. Security of the country and its citizens Martin Cejp, Jiří Buriánek, Jakub Holas, Pavol Frič	77
	2.6. Regional disparities Peter Mederly, Pavel Nováček, Jan Přikryl	85

■	3.	A pressing task: good governance	93
	3.1.	Public administration and its reform Jan Prikryl	93
	3.2.	The development of the public sector Pavol Frič	96
	3.3.	The forming of public policy Martin Potůček	101
	3.4.	The integration process into the European Union Jana Marková	103
■	4.	Selected strategies of future development Team of authors	107
	4.1.	Task one: development of population and family policies	110
	4.2.	Task two: pension reform	111
	4.3.	Task three: support for the knowledge society	112
	4.4.	Task four: reinforcement of social cohesion and national identity	113
	4.5.	Task five: reform of the country's constitutional and political system	115
■		Appendix of tables	117
■		References	125