

Contents

| | |
|---|----|
| Chapter 1 Introduction | 1 |
| Part 1 Religion | |
| Chapter 2 'Religion' and its historical transfer into China | 11 |
| 'Religion' in Europe | 11 |
| 'Religion' in imperial China? | 15 |
| The return of Confucius as an -ism and the introduction of 'religion' as policy to China | 19 |
| The current situation | 23 |
| Conclusion | 27 |
| Chapter 3 'A Chinese religion exists' | 29 |
| Freedman's critique of Religion | 33 |
| Chineseness | 39 |
| From Ritual to Religion | 44 |
| Conclusion | 47 |
| Chapter 4 A theory of religious ritual as deference and communicative excess | 53 |
| Leach's and Lévi-Strauss's theory of ritual | 57 |
| Hierarchy, a condition of religious ritual | 58 |
| Religious ritual as a liturgical sequence marked by incense | 61 |
| Answerability | 68 |
| Metaphoricity and contiguity | 69 |
| Deference and deferral | 71 |
| Ritual as mediation | 73 |
| Conclusion | 74 |

Part 2 Charisma

| | |
|---|-----|
| Chapter 5 The Organisation of Extravagance as Charismatic authority and Self-government | 77 |
| Divine selection | 78 |
| Extravagance as test of a kept promise | 81 |
| Fanzhuang | 83 |
| Cosmological sovereignty as accountable charisma | 85 |
| Chapter 6 Charismatic self-healing: a case of spirit-writing in Taiwan under Japanese occupation | 91 |
| Spirit writing as a defiance of colonial authority | 93 |
| Public emotion in China | 96 |
| Charismatic, spirit-written emotion and recognition | 98 |
| Canonisation | 99 |
| History, memory and personae | 102 |
| Chapter 7 Charisma in China | 106 |
| Universal and modern charisma | 107 |
| Incarnation of expectation: the person of the leader and the bodies and emotions of followers | 110 |
| Scenarios of intensification and dispersal | 113 |
| Fields of potency for charismatic innovation | 116 |
| Conclusion and further questions | 120 |

Part 3 Ghosts

| | |
|--|-----|
| Chapter 8 The avenging ghost | 125 |
| The avenging ghost as paradigm of a forgotten and potentially disruptive past | 126 |
| Mass death and individuation | 130 |
| Bad death and good | 135 |
| Sites of bad death and volatile pasts | 139 |
| Ghost stories and history | 140 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| A classical ghost story from the last years of absolute sovereignty in Europe: Hamlet | 142 |
| Chapter 9 Between temporalities: a case study of the transmission of loss in Taiwan | 146 |
| Temporalities | 148 |
| An Event in History: the Luku Incident | 150 |
| Mode 1: History and Official Commemoration | 153 |
| Luku victims' participation in nationalist temporality | 155 |
| Mode 2: Disruption and Repair of Families | 161 |
| Ghosts between temporalities | 164 |
| Conclusion | 166 |
| Chapter 10 Between death and life: a location of ghosts and demons | 168 |
| The pitiable undead | 170 |
| The uncanny | 173 |
| State law and family law: Creon's tragedy | 175 |
| Conclusion | 178 |
| Chapter 11 'Religion' in the government of the People's Republic of China: policy-led redefinition and openings in political space | 180 |
| Science versus waste and superstition | 183 |
| Civilisation, heritage, cultural tourism and the economy as masks for spirituality, ritual and magic | 185 |
| Government-sponsored religion as an adjunct to government | 189 |
| The space between moral and governing authorities: lower levels of government and smaller temples, rural and urban | 193 |
| The Party Secretary, Fu Xi and Christians in the 'cradle of Chinese civilisation' | 194 |
| Governing popular religion | 197 |
| References | 201 |
| Index | 211 |