

Contents

List of plates	xiii
List of maps	xvii
Preface to the third edition	xix

Prologue: Europe – a present with a past xxv

Europe – and Europeanness? xxv
Europe: old Europe, new Europe, old borders, new borders xxviii
Europe: ideas xxxi
Europe: realities xxxiv
Europe: on the problems of writing its (cultural) history xxxvii
On choices: the scope and structure of this book xl
On the use of this book xlvi
Acknowledgements xlvii

PART I

Continuity and change: new ways of surviving 1

1 Before ‘Europe’: towards an agricultural and sedentary society 3

Beginnings in Africa and the eastern Mediterranean, or the non-European origins of European culture 3
---

The advent of agriculture, temple and state 7
---

Invasion, conquest and change: the first wave 13
--

BABYLON, THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY BC: THE LAW
--

CODE OF HAMMURÁPI 16
----------------------

Beginnings in Europe: after the last Ice Age 17
---

Invasion, conquest and change: the second wave 20
---

A ‘marginal’ culture? Religion and state formation in Israel 22
---

A ‘marginal’ culture? Trade and communication in Phoenicia 23
---

A ‘marginal’ culture? Democracy and its limitations in Greece 24
--

A ‘marginal’ culture? Tribal society in Celtic Europe	33
The ‘birth of Europe’ and the Greek ‘world-view’, or how to define one’s own culture	35
The world of Alexander the Great	37
Dossier: The human body	40
2 Rome and its empire: the effects and limits of cultural integration	44
Between the Alps and the Mediterranean, between the Etruscan and the Greek worlds: the expansion of the early Romans	44
From an informal to a formal empire	48
ROME, THE SECOND CENTURY AD: A LEGAL SYSTEM, A LEGAL SOCIETY – THE ROMAN CONTRIBUTION	53
Roman culture	56
The Roman Empire and the worlds beyond	58
Dossier: The rule of law	63
3 An empire lost – an empire won? Christianity and the Roman Empire	69
Developments within the Jewish world: the genesis of Christianity	69
From Jews – and Gentiles – to Christians: the role of Jesus of Nazareth and his followers	70
Religions in the Roman Empire	75
A sect of ‘hopeless outlaws’	76
CARTHAGE, AD 180: ARGUMENTS AGAINST AND FOR THE RELIGION OF THE CHRISTIANS	79
Towards an empire Roman as well as Christian	80
Rome and its neighbours in the fourth and fifth centuries AD: ‘decline and fall’? The division and loss of the political empire – the survival of the cultural empire	85
Empire and language	90
Dossier: Charity and/or solidarity	92
PART II
Continuity and change: new forms of belief	97
4 Towards one religion for all	99
The Christian world-view: the survival of classical culture within the context of Christianity and Europe	99

MOUNT SINAI, AD 547: KOSMAS EXPLAINS THE CHRISTIAN COSMOGRAPHY	101
One religion for all: the fusion of Christianity and Europe	107
The rise of a new empire: Frankish statecraft and Christian arguments	109
Culture and cohesion: the role of ideology and education in the shaping of Carolingian Europe, or the 'First Renaissance'?	113
The impact of monasteries	117
Dossier: Charlemagne: the Father of Europe?	120
5 Three worlds around the Inner Sea: western Christendom, eastern Christendom and Islam	124
Confrontation and contact from the sixth century onwards	124
The world of the Prophet: Islam	124
God's kingdom among men: orthodox Christendom	130
A far corner of the earth: Roman, Catholic Christendom	134
The Crusades: western Christendom versus Islam and eastern Christendom	136
CLERMONT, 26 NOVEMBER 1095: POPE URBAN II CALLS FOR A CRUSADE	138
Dossier: Islam in Europe	142
6 One world, many traditions: elite culture and popular cultures: cosmopolitan norms and regional variations	145
Europe's 'feudal' polities	145
The Church and the early states	148
Economic and technological change and the early states	151
Stronger states – stronger rulers?	155
The towns and the early states	157
A Christian world or a world of Christian nations?	163
Elite culture and popular cultures: cosmopolitan norms and regional variations	169
LONDON, AD 1378: GEOFFREY CHAUCER DESCRIBES HIS WORLD	172
The importance of the universities	177
Dossier: Democracy?	184
Interlude: the worlds of Europe, c.1400–1800	188
A world of villages	189
A world of towns	197
Two worlds?	202

PART III

Continuity and change: new ways of looking at man and the world	207
7 A new society: Europe's changing views of man	209
The survival of classical culture and the beginnings of Humanism 209
The loss of Byzantium – the gain of Europe: the further development of Humanism in Italy 211
From Humanism to the Renaissance in Italy 216
ROME, AD 1538: MICHELANGELO ANALYSES ITALIAN ART 219
Humanism and the Renaissance: Italy and beyond 223
Dossier: European music 226
8 A new society: Europe as a wider world	231
Economic and technological change and the definitive formation of the 'modern' state 231
From manuscript to typescript 234
Gunpowder and compass 238
THE HAGUE, AD 1625: HUGO GROTIIUS EXPOUNDS 'THE LAW OF NATIONS' 241
Church and State: the break-up of religious unity 242
Printing, reading and the schools: education for the masses? 247
Unity and diversity: printing as a cultural revolution 253
Europe and its frontiers: nation-feeling and cultural self-definition 262
Dossier: Capitalism 264
9 A new society: Europe and the wider world since the fifteenth century	269
The 'old' world and the 'older' world 269
The 'old' world and the 'new' 275
The 'Columbian exchange' 279
EUROPE, THE EARLY SIXTEENTH CENTURY: OPINIONS ON THE CONQUEST OF AMERICA AND ITS CONSEQUENCES 285
Images of America and mirrors of Europe 286
Further cultural consequences of European expansion 294
Dossier: Europe's wider world 301

10 A new society: migration, travel and the diffusion and integration of culture in Europe	306
Migration, travel and culture 306
Non-voluntary travel: the cultural significance of migrations 307
Three types of cultural travel 310
ROME, WINTER 1644–5: JOHN EVELYN VISITS THE ETERNAL CITY 322
The practice of travel 324
To travel or not to travel? 327
Travel as an element in growing cosmopolitanism and cultural integration 329
Dossier: The Church of Rome 330
11 A new society: the ‘Republic of Letters’ as a virtual and virtuous world against a divided world	334
The Republic of Letters: a quest for harmony 334
The Republic of Letters and the ideal of tolerance: theory and practice 335
CHATEAU MONTAIGNE, NEAR BORDEAUX, AD 1580: MICHEL DE MONTAIGNE ON EUROPE AND ‘THE OTHER’ 336
The Republic of Letters and its enemies: national cultural policies, or the political uses of culture 341
The Republic of Letters, or how to communicate in an invisible institution 344
The Republic of Letters and the ‘intertraffic of the mind’: three examples 347
Dossier: Paradise 350
12 A new society: from Humanism to the Enlightenment	355
Humanism and empiricism between ‘ratio’ and ‘revelatio’ 355
From (scientific) empiricism to new visions of man and society 359
EUROPE, THE EARLY SEVENTEENTH CENTURY: VIEWS ON THE SCIENTIFIC METHOD OF FRANCIS BACON AND RENÉ DESCARTES 361
From Humanism to Enlightenment: a long dawn 366
Enlightenment and Romanticism: poles apart? 371
Dossier: Cosmos, nature, man 377

PART IV*Continuity and change: new forms of consumption and communication

383

13 Europe's revolutions: freedom and consumption for all?

385

Material culture and conspicuous consumption: Europe's process of consumer change until the end of the eighteenth century 385

Production and reproduction: a process of economic and demographic change until the end of the eighteenth century 389

A process of social and cultural change: the convergence of elites until the end of the eighteenth century 392

Two 'revolutions': one political, one economic, both cultural 396

PARIS, 27 AUGUST 1789: THE CULTURAL IMPORTANCE OF THE 'DÉCLARATION DES DROITS DE L'HOMME ET DU CITOYEN' 399

Urban, industrial culture: the regulation and consumption of time 407

Dossier: Machines that alter(ed) the world 411

14 Progress and its discontents: nationalism, economic growth and the question of cultural certainties

416

The revolutions and their aftermath 416

Elements of nationalism: the political culture of the nineteenth century 420

New elites, new mechanisms of cultural diffusion, new manifestations of culture 423

BASLE, THE MIDDLE OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY:
JACOB BURCKHARDT (1818–97) CRITICIZES
CONTEMPORARY CULTURE 430

Money and time, goods and leisure: towards a consumer culture 439

Dossier: War and Peace 441

15 Europe and the other worlds

446

Europe and its expanding world 446

Europe and Latin America: a severed relationship? 447

The 'old' world and the 'new': North America as a vision of freedom 449

Capitalism and consumerism: freedom or slavery, progress or decadence? 452
NEW YORK, 1909: HERBERT CROLY (1869–1930) INTERPRETS 'THE PROMISE OF AMERICAN LIFE' 454
Europe and 'America': a cultural symbiosis, or the growth of the 'western world' 455
To the 'heart of darkness': Europe and Africa 457
The 'old' world and the 'older' world 459
Dossier: Europe and humankind 467
16 The 'Decline of the Occident' – the loss of a dream?
From the nineteenth to the twentieth century	472
The sciences: positivism and increasing relativism 472
BERLIN, 1877: HEINRICH STEPHAN REJOICES IN THE FIRST GERMAN TELEPHONE SERVICE 473
Europe in hiding, Europe surviving 480
A growing sense of fin de siècle : between pessimism and optimism 485
A world between wars 490
Dossier: Who am I? 498
17 Towards a new Europe?	503
Science, culture and society 503
After the Second World War: deconstruction and reconstruction 510
A culture of time versus money 516
From 'familyman' to 'salaryman' – from group identity to individual identity? 522
Dimensions of identity – culture as communication: towards an 'anonymous mass culture'? 526
EUROPE SINCE THE 1960s: POPULAR MUSIC – HIGH CULTURE? 535
Dossier: Europe and Europeanness in the twenty-first century 540
Epilogue: Europe – a present with a future	546
Notes	562
Index	599