

Contents

About the authors	ix
Acknowledgments	x
Abbreviations and acronyms	xi
1 Introduction	I
2 The past as prologue: the culture of Polish foreign and security policy	5
The state, sovereignty and identity	6
The Second World War and its aftermath: the birth of Poland's 'instinctive Atlanticism'	11
Strategic perspectives at the beginning of the Third Republic	15
Towards a Fourth Republic?	17
Autumn 2005: a renaissance of history	18
Conclusion	20
3 The emergence of an Atlanticist: the strategic orientation of Polish security policy after 1989	22
1989–91: power vacuum	23
1992–7: transition	29
1998–2004: consolidation	33
Conclusion	38
4 The EU as a security actor: the Polish perspective	40
Exclusion fuelling scepticism: Poland and the ESDP, 1998–2003	42
Thinking 'outside the box': Poland and the ESDP after 2003	52
The EU as a security actor – an evolving Polish perspective	56
Conclusion	56