

Contents

Foreword	7
Ákos Moravánszky
Introduction	13
Judith Hopfengärtner
I Discourses on Humanism	21
Re-Humanizing Architecture: The Search for a Common Ground in the Postwar Years, 1950–1970	23
Ákos Moravánszky
CIAM: From “Spirit of the Age” to the “Spiritual Needs” of People	43
Annie Pedret
Was Humanized Socialist Modernism Possible After All?
The Promise and Failure of Mass Housing in Hungary	63
Béla Kerékgyártó
Mieczysław Porębski: Man and Architecture in the Iconosphere	85
Wojciech Batus
II Building New Societies	99
Continuity or Discontinuity? Narratives on Modern Architecture in East and West Germany during the Cold War	101
Hilde Heynen
Building Together: Construction Sites in a Divided Europe During the 1950s	115
Nikolas Drosos
Building a New Warsaw, Building a Social Warsaw: The First Reconstruction Plans and Their International Review	129
Marcela Hanáčková
Building a New Community – A Comparison Between the Netherlands and Czechoslovakia	145
Marijke Martin, Cor Wagenaar
“Social Efficiency” and “Humanistic Specificity”: A Double Discourse in Romanian Architecture in the 1960s	173
Dana Vais
Sociological and Environmental-Psychology Research in Estonia during the 1960s and 1970s: A Critique of Soviet Mass-Housing	185
Karin Hallas-Murula

III The Urban Context	197
Bogdan Bogdanović and the Search for a Meaningful City Vladimir Kulić	199
From "New Units of Settlement" to the Old Arbat: The Soviet NÉR Group's Search for Spaces of Community Elke Beyer	211
Theories and Practices of Re-Humanizing Postwar Italian Architecture: Ernesto Nathan Rogers and Giancarlo De Carlo Luca Molinari	229
Urban Planning and Christian Humanism: The Institut Supérieur d'Urbanisme Appliqué in Brussels under Gaston Bardet Sven Sterken, Eva Weyns	243
The Monumentality of the Matchbox: On "Slabs" and Politics in the Cold War Stanislaus von Moos	255
Between City and University: New Monumentality in the Student Center of the Campus of Coimbra Susana Constantino	283
IV The Inhabited Nature	295
Socialist Pastoral: The Role of Folklore in Socialist Architectural Culture, 1950s and 1960s Juliana Maxim	297
Dwelling in the Middle Landscape: Rethinking the Architecture of Rural Communities at CIAM 10 Nelson Mota	311
A Desire for Innocence? Community and Recreational Architecture around Lake Balaton (1957–1968) Domonkos Wettstein	325
Unexpected Side Effects: Indirect Benefits of International Mass Tourism on Croatia's Adriatic Coast Michael Zinganel	339
Appendix	361
Notes on Contributors	363
Index	371