'This book offers an exceptionally lucid and insightful overview of national European and EU policies on immigration and integration, exploring how the two intersect. It should be required reading for students and scholars of European migration.'

Christina Boswell, University of Edinburgh

The causes and effects of international migration are high on the political agenda of European countries and at EU level. They have acquired added resonance as a result of the growing importance of intra-EU mobility and the tragic consequences of the refugee crisis. The new edition of this book has been fully updated to account for these events and explores:

- Immigration policy in various EU states
- Responses to migrant settlement, including immigrant policies
- The development and effects of the EU's Schengen agreement and emergence of common EU policies
- The tension between integration and disintegration within EU common approaches and policies.

It looks specifically at the contexts of Britain, France, Germany, The Netherlands, Sweden, Italy, Spain, Greece and Turkey as well as examining the changing nature of migration dynamics in central and eastern Europe.

This book is a significant and timely analysis, suitable for students of migration at any level.

Andrew Geddes is Professor of Politics, University of Sheffield.

Peter Scholten is Associate Professor of Public Policy and Politics, Erasmus University, Rotterdam.
