

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
1 How might it be?	19
Why Deleuze? 21
Why video diaries? 28
Why this book? 33
2 Actualised utopias	38
Utopia of the 'not-yet' 40
No present, no future 43
Temporal immanence 46
Future in the present 49
Sustainable utopian ethics 52
3 Logics of recognition	60
Gender Recognition Act 2004 62
Shift gender/sex 63
Until death do us part 64
Dialectics of recognition 67
Limits of recognition 69
Intersectionality 72
Will to be imperceptible 74
The diary sessions, I – on gender recognition	85
4 Spatial dystopia: or a case against public toilets	99
The monolingualism of public toilets 100
The making of public toilets 103

The un-making of public toilets 106

An ethics for public toilets 111

The diary sessions, II – on public toilets 121

5 Marginal bodies 134

The monstrous body 137

Othered bodies 139

Different bodies 145

Perverse bodies 149

Nomadic bodies 154

The diary sessions, III – on wrong bodies 161

Conclusion 173

Bibliography 179

Index 193