

CONTENTS

| | |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| List of illustrations | ix |
| About the author | xi |
| Foreword | xiii |
| List of abbreviations | xvi |
| Introduction | 1 |
| 1 Developing mature organizations for societal value | 3 |
| Developing organizations to create value | 3 |
| Developing a global value system | 5 |
| Value as purpose | 6 |
| Redefining OL&D as an evidence-based profession | 8 |
| Value and ethics | 9 |
| Only mature organizations become virtuous circles of value creation | 11 |
| The Six Stages of the Maturity Scale | 14 |
| Saying no to training demands | 14 |
| Anticipating learning needs | 16 |
| Anticipating learning needs moves the organization to Stage 4 | 17 |
| Re-educating senior managers about learning | 19 |
| 2 The evaluation challenge: theory and practice | 33 |
| Let's face it – evaluation is never going to be a popular subject | 33 |
| Dealing with the top 10 objections to measurement, evaluation and ROI | 34 |
| What is the purpose of learning? | 37 |

| | |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| The purpose of evaluation – learning | 40 |
| The Classical Training Cycle | 43 |
| Only two types of training gap | 45 |
| Teaching managers how to analyse learning needs – seven key questions | 47 |
| Learning needs in the context of organizational culture | 48 |
| If evaluation is so simple why do so few organizations do it? | 50 |
| Kick-starting the evaluation process by building a model | 51 |
| Plan, Do, Evaluate, Act | 52 |
| The Kearns Baseline Evaluation Model™ and system | 54 |
| Shifting the evaluation emphasis to pre-learning | 56 |
| Understanding the difference between $ evaluation and validation | 57 |
| Distinguishing between ‘basic’ and ‘added’ value | 58 |
| Evaluating poorly designed training | 63 |
| Evaluating value in a not-for-profit context | 64 |
| The neoclassical learning cycle | 65 |
| Learning to cycle | 71 |
| Prioritizing learning budgets | 75 |

3 Making a convincing case for the strategic value of OL&D

77

| | |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| What value is the organization seeking to create? | 77 |
| Resistance to evaluation, learning and change | 79 |
| ROI is only as useful as the maturity of its users | 81 |
| ROI can be a window to the soul of the organization | 85 |
| Making the ROI of learning more scientific | 91 |
| Using ROI to explain the key difference between Boxes 1 and 2 | 93 |

4 Learning design

96

| | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Trainers are probably guilty until proven innocent | 96 |
| OL&DPs are the most professional performance managers | 99 |
| Performance appraisals, personal reviews and development plans | 100 |
| The right measures – activity, performance or added value? | 102 |
| How to construct a performance curve | 103 |
| The individual performance curve | 106 |
| Whole system performance management | 109 |
| Mature learning isn’t an intervention | 111 |
| There is nothing new in talent management | 112 |
| Coaching as a business intervention | 115 |
| So does coaching work? | 116 |
| So how much of the improvement was due to coaching? | 118 |
| Some general lessons and conclusions regarding the efficacy of coaching | 119 |

| | |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Where does conventional management development fit? | 120 |
| Design principles – deconstruction versus results | 121 |
| Where does learning technology fit in? | 122 |
| 5 Strategic OL&D is integral to business strategy | 125 |
| OL&DPs have a vocation to create value through people | 125 |
| Establishing the principles of evidence-based OL&D | 126 |
| What does ‘being strategic’ really mean? | 129 |
| Developing strategic thinking as an OL&DP | 131 |
| OL&DPs are consummate business analysts | 134 |
| The strategic framework for whole system analysis | 135 |
| The vision thing | 136 |
| Learning strategy | 138 |
| Turning a burger vision into reality | 141 |
| Operational learning – minimum information | 144 |
| Measuring whole system effectiveness | 145 |
| Developing ‘soft’ management skills | 146 |
| 6 The role of OL&D in a mature organization | 150 |
| A completely new role | 150 |
| The OL&DP’s role as wise counsel | 152 |
| The internal customer isn’t always right | 155 |
| A positive and constructive relationship for the OL&DP | 157 |
| An evaluation feedback algorithm – follow the simple steps | 158 |
| The learning contract | 158 |
| 7 Designing and developing the whole system | 166 |
| Designing the whole system means the whole system | 166 |
| Can an organization learn? | 169 |
| That used to be the HP way | 170 |
| Specifying the learning organization | 171 |
| Brain transplants for non-learning organizations | 173 |
| The necessary conditions for a learning organization | 175 |
| Offering new insights into organizational management | 176 |
| The concept of balanced measures and scorecards | 177 |
| EFQM – The European Foundation for Quality Management Model | 179 |
| Whole system development | 181 |
| Human systems analysis | 182 |
| Organization design always comes before organization development | 184 |
| IHRM’s Ten Pillars | 186 |
| Process improvement is a good place to start | 189 |

viii Contents

| | |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Designing the honest organization | 191 |
| Designing and developing individual roles, strategically | 193 |
| Process analysis: the nuts and bolts of role definition | 194 |
| The human interconnectivity of processes | 197 |
| Learning loops | 199 |
| Rating organizational maturity | 201 |
| Bibliography | 207 |
| Index | 208 |