

European Competition Law Review

2013 Volume 34 Issue 3
ISSN: 0144-3054

Table of Contents

Articles

MANUEL KELLERBAUER AND TING
GONG

The Western Digital/Viviti and Seagate/Samsung Mergers Reviewed in the EU and China—Different Priorities? 119

This article briefly recalls the basic rules of merger control in the European Union and China. It then analyses the different responses to the main legal issues raised by the two parallel transactions in the HDD industry, and explores the reasons for divergences in the two jurisdictions regarding the review of two mergers that essentially raised identical competitive concerns.

DEREK RIDYARD

Another Fine Mess: OFT Proposals Pave the Way to Effects-Based Analysis of Competition Law Penalties 128

This main intent of the new UK fines guidelines issued by the OFT in September 2012 is to increase the levels of fines for serious competition law infringements, but recent CAT judgments have also forced the OFT to give greater consideration to proportionality. This article argues that this pressure for fines to be proportionate to the offence will constrain the OFT to place more weight on the economic effects of infringements, and that doing so will give greater legitimacy to penalty awards and improve the UK enforcement regime.

YVAN DESMEDT AND LAURENT DE
MUYTER

New Fining Guidelines in Belgium: If not a Spotlight, then a Glimmer? 131

The adoption of new Fining Guidelines is a further step in the development of Belgium's national competition law and creates a more transparent and secure enforcement environment. However, these Guidelines have been adopted in the wake of a legislative reform which will lead to significant institutional changes and they leave several legal and practical issues unaddressed that will need to be resolved in forthcoming cases.

JOSEPH DALE MATHIS

European Competition Law and Multilateral Interchange Fees in the Market for Payment Cards: A Critical Outlook 139

This paper provides a current overview of the literature on interchange fees, highlighting the economic rationale and legal issues surrounding the subject. It continues to offer an analysis on the basis of European competition law through recent Commission Decisions and case law of the General Court.

EVI MATTIOLI

Commitments and Settlements in the Future UK Competition Regime 160

In 2012 the UK Government announced its decision on proposals to reform competition law, following a consultation process that started in 2011. The proposed changes are laid down in the Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Bill, currently going through Parliament. The article will focus on the effects of the substantial reform on the commitments and settlement procedures, two enforcement tools of increasing importance throughout the European Union.

Book Reviews

DR ARNDT CHRISTIANSEN

Research Handbook on the Economics of Antitrust Law by Einer Elhauge 169

National Reports

European Institutions

MERGER REGULATIONS

Prior notifications of concentrations N-37

Channel Islands

LEGISLATION

Competition Ordinance N-39

Czech Republic

LEGISLATION

Competition Act N-40

France

ABUSE OF DOMINANCE

Microsoft N-41

Germany

MERGERS

Brenntag Germany Holding N-42

Switzerland

ANTI-COMPETITIVE AGREEMENTS

Motor vehicle distribution N-44

UK

ENFORCEMENT

Follow-on actions N-44

US

MONOPOLISATION

Sherman Act N-45

US

MERGERS

Hospitals N-46

US

ANTI-COMPETITIVE PRACTICES

Robinson-Patman Act N-47