

Table of Contents

Abbreviations	xiii
Figures and Tables	xv
Acknowledgements	xvii
Note to the Readers	xix
Chapter 1
Introduction: Challenges for Copyright in the Online Environment	1
1.1 Background and Problem Definition	1
1.2 Research Questions	9
1.3 Methodology	11
1.4 Scientific and Societal Relevance	16
1.5 Outline	17
Chapter 2
Copyright Rewind: Precedents for Compensation Systems	21
2.1 Introduction	21
2.2 Precedent Selection	22
2.2.1 Copyright Rule or Scheme	23
2.2.2 Regulation of Large-Scale or Mass Use	24
2.2.3 Non-voluntary Licences	25
2.2.4 Equitable Remuneration or Fair Compensation	27
2.2.5 Selection of Precedents	30
2.3 Statutory Licensing for Private Copying	30
2.3.1 A German Legal Creation	31
2.3.1.1 Pre-1965: The GEMA Litigation that Shaped the Act	32

Table of Contents

2.3.1.2	The 1965 German Copyright Act and Its 1985 Amendment	36
2.3.2	A Legal Chronology of International Developments	39
2.3.2.1	Berne Convention: The 1967 Stockholm Revision Conference	39
2.3.2.2	Post-Stockholm: From 1967 to the 1990s	43
2.3.2.3	Preparatory Works for the 1996 WIPO Treaties	44
2.3.3	Manifestations in the Acquis	46
2.3.4	Conclusions on Statutory Licensing for Private Copying	52
2.4	Compulsory Licensing for Broadcasting and Communication to the Public	55
2.4.1	The Early Days of Broadcasting	56
2.4.2	Compulsory Licensing for Broadcasting and Communication to the Public in the Berne Convention	61
2.4.2.1	Analysis	61
2.4.2.2	Justifications	65
2.4.3	Compulsory Licensing for Related Rights: Brief Reference	70
2.4.4	Manifestations in the Acquis	72
2.4.5	Conclusions on Compulsory Licensing for Broadcasting and Communication to the Public	77
2.5	Conclusions	80
 Chapter 3
Alternative Compensation Systems: Taxonomy of Legalisation Proposals		85
3.1	Introduction	85
3.2	Conceptual Design	88
3.3	Types of Alternative Compensation System	94
3.3.1	Some Basics on Collective Rights Management	95
3.3.2	Voluntary Collective Licensing	100
3.3.2.1	Characterisation and Legal Framework	100
3.3.2.2	Legalisation Proposals	104
3.3.3	Extended Collective Licensing	106
3.3.3.1	Characterisation and Legal Framework	106
3.3.3.2	Legalisation Proposals	111
3.3.4	Mandatory Collective Management	113
3.3.4.1	Characterisation and Legal Framework	113
3.3.4.2	Theories on Mandatory Collective Management	118
3.3.4.2.1	Limited Applicability to Exclusive Rights	118

	3.3.4.2.2	Broader Applicability to Exclusive Rights	120
	3.3.4.2.3	The Impact of Soulier and Doke	123
	3.3.4.3	Legalisation Proposals	124
3.3.5		Legal Licences: Statutory and Compulsory	126
	3.3.5.1	Characterisation and Legal Framework	126
	3.3.5.2	Legalisation Proposals	130
3.3.6		State Systems	132
	3.3.6.1	Characterisation and Legal Framework	132
	3.3.6.2	Legalisation Proposals	136
3.4		Attributes of Alternative Compensation Systems	138
	3.4.1	Subject Matter Scope	139
	3.4.2	Substantive Rights Scope: Authorised Use	140
	3.4.3	Compensation Type	143
	3.4.4	Management System	144
	3.4.5	Compensation Targets	146
	3.4.6	Burden of Compensation	147
3.5		Conclusions	148

Chapter 4

Between Rights and Limitations: Mapping the Space for the Legalisation of the Online Use of Copyright Works			151
4.1	Introduction		151
4.2	Typology of Online Uses		152
	4.2.1	Browsing	153
	4.2.2	Downloading	153
	4.2.3	Streaming	154
	4.2.4	Stream Capture or Ripping	155
	4.2.5	Uploading	155
	4.2.6	Hyperlinking	156
	4.2.7	Digital Adaptations	157
4.3	How Does the Bundle of Exclusive Rights in the Acquis Apply to Mass Online Use of Works by Individuals?		158
	4.3.1	Uses Covered by the Right of Reproduction	161
		4.3.1.1 Legal Framework	161
		4.3.1.2 Application to Activities of Internet Users	163
	4.3.2	Uses Covered by the Right of Communication to the Public	164
		4.3.2.1 Legal Framework	164
		4.3.2.1.1 An 'Act of Communication'	167
		4.3.2.1.2 Communication to the 'Public'	170
		4.3.2.1.3 Specific Technical Means	171
		4.3.2.1.4 New Public and Online Use	173

Table of Contents

	4.3.2.1.4.1	Initial Application in Svensson	174
	4.3.2.1.4.2	The Issue of Unauthorised Sources and GS Media	176
	4.3.2.1.5	Profit-Making Nature of the Communication	182
	4.3.2.2	Application to Activities of Internet Users	183
4.4		What limitations Apply to Uses Covered by Exclusive Rights?	191
4.4.1		General Framework, Objectives and Interpretation of Copyright Limitations	191
	4.4.1.1	General Framework	191
	4.4.1.2	Relationship with Technological Protection Measures	194
	4.4.1.3	Objectives	198
	4.4.1.4	The Court's Case Law: From Strict Interpretation to Restricted Flexibility	199
	4.4.1.5	Interim Conclusions	205
4.4.2		Temporary and Transient Copying	207
4.4.3		Private Copying	212
	4.4.3.1	Private Use	213
	4.4.3.2	Non-commercial	214
	4.4.3.3	Fair Compensation	215
	4.4.3.4	Rights Holders' Authorisation	217
	4.4.3.5	Application of Technological Protection Measures	219
	4.4.3.6	Lawfulness of Source	220
	4.4.3.7	Third Party Devices Used for Copying	223
	4.4.3.8	Application to Activities of Internet Users	225
4.4.4		Limitations Susceptible of Application to Digital Adaptations	227
	4.4.4.1	Quotations	230
	4.4.4.2	Incidental Inclusion	233
	4.4.4.3	Caricature, Parody and Pastiche	234
	4.4.4.4	Interim Conclusions	236
4.5		Conclusions	238
Chapter 5
Copyright Reform: Admissibility of Legalisation under the Three-Step Test and the Objectives of EU Copyright Law			245
5.1		Introduction	245
5.2		Analytical Framework of the Three-Step Test	247
	5.2.1	Variants and Interpretation	247

Table of Contents

5.2.1.1	The Berne Convention and Its Relationship to Other Treaties	250
5.2.1.2	The WIPO Treaties and the Agreed Statements	253
5.2.1.3	The Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Law	254
5.2.1.4	EU Copyright Law and Its Relationship to International Law	255
5.2.2	Spectrum of Readings	258
5.2.2.1	Strict Interpretation	258
5.2.2.2	Flexible Interpretation	260
5.3	The Space for an Alternative Compensation System in the Three-Step Test	263
5.3.1	Certain Special Cases	263
5.3.1.1	Certain Cases	264
5.3.1.2	Special Cases: Qualitative and Quantitative Considerations	264
5.3.2	Conflict with the Normal Exploitation of Works	268
5.3.2.1	The Traditional View of Normal Exploitation	268
5.3.2.2	Objections to the Traditional View of Normal Exploitation	272
5.3.2.3	A Flexible Interpretation of Normal Exploitation	275
5.3.2.3.1	Normal Exploitation and Non-commercial Use of Works	276
5.3.2.3.2	Indirect Effect on Commercial Exploitation	278
5.3.2.3.3	Normal Exploitation and Compensation	284
5.3.3	Unreasonable Prejudice to Legitimate Interests	285
5.3.3.1	Unreasonable Prejudice	287
5.3.3.2	Legitimate Interests of Rights Holders and the Public Interest	288
5.3.3.3	The Interests of Rights Holders and Fair Compensation	291
5.3.3.4	The Conflicting Interests of Creators and Exploiters	294
5.3.3.5	Public Interest in the Promotion of Creativity and Circulation of Works	296
5.3.3.6	Public Interest in the Respect of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms	298
5.3.3.6.1	Freedom of Expression and Information	298

Table of Contents

	5.3.3.6.2	Protection of Privacy and Personal Data	304
	5.3.3.6.3	Intermediaries and Freedom to Conduct a Business	306
	5.3.4	Summary: Application of the Three-Step Test	310
5.4		Overcoming Conflicts with the Normal Exploitation of Works	315
	5.4.1	Embargo Periods	315
	5.4.2	Opt-Out Rules	318
	5.4.2.1	Opt-Out Rules and Alternative Compensation Systems	319
	5.4.2.2	Are Opt-Out Rules Prohibited Formalities?	323
5.5		The Normative Choice Between Exclusivity and Remunerated Access	326
	5.5.1	Copyright Theories, Exclusivity and Remuneration	327
	5.5.1.1	Natural Rights	332
	5.5.1.2	Utilitarianism	336
	5.5.2	The Access and Remuneration Dimensions of Copyright	341
	5.5.3	Normative Consistency with EU Copyright Law	349
5.6		Conclusions	357
Chapter 6
		Summary and Conclusions: Towards Access and Remuneration	365
6.1		Summary	366
	6.1.1	The Case for Reform of EU Copyright Law	366
	6.1.2	Lessons from the Past	369
	6.1.3	A Taxonomy of Alternative Compensation Systems	371
	6.1.4	The Legal Space for Non-commercial Online Use of Works in EU Copyright Law	374
	6.1.5	The Admissibility of a Limitation-Based Statutory Licence for Non-commercial Online Use under the Three-Step Test and Its Consistency with the Objectives of EU Copyright Law	378
6.2		A Blueprint for Reform: A Limitation-Based Statutory Licence for Non-commercial Online Use of Works by Individuals	386
	6.2.1	Beneficiaries (and Intermediaries)	386
	6.2.2	Subject Matter Scope	387
	6.2.3	Substantive Rights Scope: Authorised Non-commercial Online Use of Works	391
	6.2.4	Fair Compensation	394
	6.2.5	Agreed Contractual Terms	397
	6.2.6	Basic Operation	398

Table of Contents

6.2.7	Scaling Down Reform: Adaptability of the Proposal to Collective Licensing	402
6.3	A Way Forward	406
	Bibliography	409
	Primary Sources: Legal Texts	447
	Secondary Sources	455
	Table of Cases	463
	Index	473