

Contents

Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
About the Author	xvii
Author's Introduction	xxiii
1. How to Think about Truth	1
2. How to Think about Opinion	11
3. The Difference between Knowledge and Opinion	21
4. Opinion and Human Freedom	32
5. Opinion and Majority Rule	41
6. How to Think about Man	51
7. How Different Are Humans?	61
8. The Darwinian Theory of Human Origin	69
9. The Answer to Darwin	78
10. The Uniqueness of Man	88
11. How to Think about Emotion	97
12. How to Think about Love	108
13. Love as Friendship: A World Without Sex	117
14. Sexual Love	127
15. The Morality of Love	135
16. How to Think about Good and Evil	143
17. How to Think about Beauty	153

18. How to Think about Freedom	163
19. How to Think about Learning	173
20. Youth Is a Barrier to Learning	184
21. How to Read a Book	194
22. How to Talk	204
23. How to Watch TV	214
24. How to Think about Art	223
25. The Kinds of Art	233
26. The Fine Arts	244
27. The Goodness of Art	254
28. How to Think about Justice	264
29. How to Think about Punishment	274
30. How to Think about Language	284
31. How to Think about Work	294
32. Work, Play, and Leisure	302
33. The Dignity of All Kinds of Work	312
34. Work and Leisure Then and Now	320
35. Work, Leisure, and Liberal Education	329
36. How to Think about Law	338
37. The Kinds of Law	347
38. The Making of Law	357
39. The Justice of Law	368
40. How to Think about Government	378
41. The Nature of Government	386
42. The Powers of Government	396
43. The Best Form of Government	405
44. How to Think about Democracy	414

45. How to Think about Change	424
46. How to Think about Progress	435
47. How to Think about War and Peace	446
48. How to Think about Philosophy	456
49. How Philosophy Differs from Science and Religion	466
50. Unsolved Problems of Philosophy	476
51. How Can Philosophy Progress?	487
52. How to Think about God	497
 Historical Note: How This Book Came to Be	 507
Index	509