

Contents

List of figures	page x
List of tables	xi
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv
A note on transcriptions	xvi
List of abbreviations	xvii
1 Introduction to morphology and syntax	1
The form–function composite	3
Creativity and recursion	5
Grammar	7
Morphology and syntax	7
Lexicon	9
Three expression types compared	11
Subtypes of lexical expression	12
Classes in the lexicon	14
Some basic concepts in morphology	16
Introduction to the exercises	20
Conceptual outline of chapter 1	25
Exercises	26
2 Morphological processes and conceptual categories	32
Conceptual categories and the problem of labeling	32
The “big ten” morphological processes	40
Methods for representing morphological processes	45
Conceptual outline of chapter 2	54
Exercises	55
3 Morphophonemics	63
Specifying the environments for morphophonemic rules	67
How to pick an underlying form	70
Rule ordering	73
Nasal assimilation in English	75
Types of morphophonemic rules	78
Possession in Asheninka	81
Summary of notational conventions	83
Conceptual outline of chapter 3	85
Exercises	85

4 Word classes	93
Nouns	94
Verbs	104
Adjectives	116
Adverbs	117
Other word classes	118
Conceptual outline of Chapter 4	126
Exercises	127
5 Exploring subclasses	133
Methodology	134
Conceptual outline of Chapter 5	144
Exercises	144
6 Constituent structure	152
A note about syntactic formalisms	152
Syntax	153
Tests for constituent structure	158
Phrase structure rules	165
Constituent structure trees	166
Ambiguity	180
Conceptual outline of chapter 6	182
Exercises	183
7 Language typology	189
Morphological typology	190
Syntactic typology	191
Examples of an OV and a VO language	194
Pragmatic constituent order languages	198
How to analyze the syntactic typology of a language	202
Conceptual outline of chapter 7	204
Exercises	204
8 Grammatical relations	210
Grammatical relations within noun phrases	211
Grammatical relations in clauses	212
Systems for organizing grammatical relations	216
Analyzing grammatical relations systems	221
Split systems	223
Conceptual outline of chapter 8	229
Exercises	229
9 Voice and valence	237
Valence-decreasing constructions	241
Valence-increasing constructions	258
Combinations of valence-related constructions	272
Conceptual outline of chapter 9	275
Exercises	277

10 Multi-clause constructions	288
Serial verbs	288
Complement clauses	289
Adverbial clauses	295
Clause chains and switch-reference	298
Relative clauses	299
Coordination	307
Conceptual outline of chapter 10	310
Exercises	311

Glossary	320
-----------------	-----

References	349
-------------------	-----

Subject and language index	357
-----------------------------------	-----