Contents

Introductory section
Introduction
Revisiting Europeanisation: the role of social actors emislosin the EU accession process
Section 1. Strategic usages of European resources and their differiential effects on national social actors
The multilevel strategies of Portuguese socio-economic actors in the EU
The Turkish interest groups in Brussels
The Europeanisation of interest groups in post-communist states: the case of Estonia
The use of discourse on multifunctional agriculture in Bulgaria and Czech Republic: the case of agricultural lobby
Section 2. A new network of social actors in the context of widening EU
The influence of the EU on the NGO sector in Poland- a benefit or an obstacle?

Europe as a means of action: the campaign for voting rights for third country nationals in Europeanisation process
The political communication of social movemes an empirical analysis of ATTAC associations claims-making over European integration Mathieu Petithomme	211
Conclusion: towards a more sociological understanding of europeanisation	245
List of authors	