

CONTENTS

Thanks and acknowledgements	ix
Welcome to the book!	1
What this book will help you to do	1
Thinking critically for yourself	2
Thinking critically online	2
What is critical thinking (and why does it matter)?	3
The opposite of uncritical thinking	3
Scepticism and objectivity	6
The battle against bias	9
Fast and slow thinking	10
Allocating your attention	12
Your toolkit for critical thinking	13
What is critical thinking for?	15
Summary	16
PART I: THE ART AND SCIENCE OF BEING REASONABLE	19
1 Understanding the reasons behind things	21
What is an argument? Persuasion through reasoning	23
Spotting arguments by searching for a conclusion	25
What isn't an argument? Information without reasoning	28
Explanations: the business of reasoning backwards	32
What isn't an argument? Persuasion without reasoning	35
Summary	39
2 Spelling out arguments and assumptions	41
Premises and conclusions: the standard form	43
Reconstructing extended arguments	46
A step-by-step guide to reconstructing arguments	50
A few further words about assumptions	57
Putting it all together	59
Summary	63
3 Reasoning with logic and certainty	65
Introducing deductive reasoning	67
Valid and invalid arguments	68
Necessary and sufficient conditions	70
Two types of valid and invalid reasoning	73

Sound and unsound arguments	77
Summary	78
4 Reasoning with observation and uncertainty	81
Argument by induction	83
Introducing inductive force	85
Induction and everyday language	88
Addressing uncertainty through probability	89
Making use of samples	91
The problem of induction	94
Induction and falsification	95
Summary	98
5 Developing explanations and theories	101
Introducing abduction	103
Explanations, theories and hypotheses	105
Moving towards better explanations	106
Moving from evidence to proof	109
Correlation and causation	111
Conducting meaningful research	115
Summary	119
6 Assessing evidence and planning your reading strategy	121
Engaging critically with primary and secondary sources	123
Creating a strategy for critical reading	131
Note-taking and critical engagement	136
Summary	143
INTERMISSION	145
PART II: BEING REASONABLE IN AN UNREASONABLE WORLD	149
7 Getting to grips with rhetoric	151
The power of language and rhetoric	153
Putting persuasion in context	155
Analysing a message in detail: emotion and human stories	157
Aiming for impartiality	160
Rhetorical devices	164
Summary	167
8 Seeing through faulty reasoning	171
Fallacious arguments and faulty reasoning	173
Fallacies, truths and hidden assumptions	175
Informal fallacies of relevance (red herrings)	177
Informal fallacies of ambiguity (linguistic fallacies)	181

CONTENTS

Informal fallacies of presumption (material fallacies)	183
Two formal fallacies: affirming the consequent and denying the antecedent	187
The undistributed middle: a formal fallacy	187
Base rate neglect: another formal fallacy	188
From base rate neglect to Bayes's theorem	189
Summary	194
9 Understanding cognitive bias	197
Four types of heuristic	200
When to trust heuristics and when to distrust them	206
Biases based on how things are presented	208
Biases born from over-simplification	211
Biases born from a lack of insight	213
Behavioural Economics and the research context	215
Summary	217
10 Overcoming bias in yourself and others	219
Attaching excessive significance to random events	221
Failing to consider things that didn't happen	228
Over-estimating regularity and predictability	231
Humans: good at social situations, bad with numbers	237
Summary	239
11 Thinking critically about technology	241
From data to knowledge via fake news	244
Social proof and system biases	248
Time, attention and other people	254
Search, discovery and categories of knowledge	256
Practical tips for search, discovery and beyond	261
Summary	266
12 Putting it all together: critical thinking in study, work and life	269
Good writing in general	271
Good academic writing in particular	272
Writing and rewriting in practice	276
Getting the work done: what is holding you back?	279
Critical thinking and you	281
Ten commandments for critical thinking	283
Summary	284
And finally...	285
Reading guide	287
Glossary	289
A synopsis of five valid forms of argument	299
Endnotes	303
Index	309