

Contents

List of Maps	xi
Preface	xiii
A Brief Note on Languages and Transliteration	xxiii

Introduction: The Structural Underpinnings of European Genocide, 1912–1953	1
By way of prologue	1
Rimlands	5
Strengths and weaknesses of this approach	12
Setting our own agenda	22

PART ONE: GREAT WAR AND REVOLUTION

1. The Great War: Site of Genocide or Signpost to its Future Enactment?	35
Setting the scene	35
Total war	37
Empires and their rimland peoples	42
The military as drivers of communal onslaught? The Russian Great Retreat	50
Colonial revolt and retribution	65
Collective paranoia in action: Belgium 1914	72
Blaming the Jews	77
2. Armenian Genocide: Ottoman Catastrophes	95
Setting the scene	95
Genocides before the genocide? war in the Balkans, 1912–13	99
CUP new thinking	108
The struggle in the east	121
War as catalyst	131
A decision for genocide?	140
The contours of mass murder	152
Imperial dissolution and its violence	166
3. The First Crisis of the Rimlands	172
Setting the scene	172
Order versus disorder	176
Renewed military onslaught against the Jews	187
Two Russian Vendées	198
Anglo-French overreach in the east	214
‘The unmixing of peoples’: the road to and from Lausanne	230

PART TWO: INTERREGNUM BETWEEN GREAT WARS

4. The Lost Peace	241
Setting the scene	241
A world lost?	244
A world restored?	262
Genocidal 'business as usual': Kemalism versus the Kurds	275
A sobering sequel: 'the Assyrian affair'	293
5. Anti-System One: The Emerging Stalin State	300
Setting the scene	300
The Stalin state: aspirations, limitations, incubi	307
Smashing the internal enemy: the war against 'the people'	320
Smashing the external enemy: the war against the 'fifth column'	345
6. Anti-System Two: The Emerging Hitler State	366
Setting the scene	366
The legacy of 1918	370
The Hitler phenomenon and German longing	384
A regime and its 'enemies'	392
Race in place of people	403
The year 1938	418
Notes	429
Select Bibliography	501
Index	529