

Contents

---

Acknowledgments	xi
Part I. Introduction	1
1. Citizen, Customer, Partner, and Public Management	3
The Public's Three Primary Roles	4
Purpose and Plan of the Book	12
2. The Changing Place of the Public in Public Management	14
Politics and Administration: Contrasting Perspectives	14
Three Waves of Change	19
Citizen, Customer, Partner: Three Essential Roles	28
Part II. The Public as Customer	31
3. Providing Customer Service in Public Service	33
A High-Volume Activity	34
Is It a Mistake to View the Public as Customers?	35
Providing Good "Customer Service"	38
Government's Unique Customer Service Challenge:
Whom to Contact and How	43
The Promise of New Technologies	46
The Benefits of Better Customer Service	57
4. Learning About the Public's Needs	60
The Value of Information from Government's Customers	60
Citizen Contacts and Customer Relationship
Management Systems	61
Citizen, Customer, and Stakeholder Surveys	66
Focus Groups	76

Management by Getting Around	80
The Value and Challenges of Better Information on Customers	81
Part III. The Public as Partner	83
5. Coproducing Public Services and Public Value	85
An Overview of Coproduction and Partnering	86
The Range of Coproduction: A Sampler	91
Why Coproduction and Why Now?	96
Benefits, Costs, and Limitations	99
The Limits and Potential of Coproduction	101
6. Managing for Coproduction	102
Change the Outlook of Public Managers	102
Simplify the Task	103
Enhance the Abilities of the Public	106
Provide Incentives for the Public to Contribute	106
Use Sanctions as a Last Resort	112
Toward Expanded Coproduction	113
Part IV. The Public as Citizen	117
7. When Is Public Involvement Desirable?	119
The Evolution of Public Involvement	120
The Debate over Public Involvement	121
Assessing the Need for Involvement	126
Getting Out Front on Issues	134
Structuring a Supportive Decision-Making Framework	137
Entering the World of Public Involvement	141
8. Engaging Representative Participation and Reaching Effective Decisions	144
The Dilemma of Representative Participation	144
Defining the Relevant Public	146
Achieving Open Dialogue and Effective Resolution	158
The Promise of Public Involvement	164
9. Techniques for Involving the Public in Decision Making	168
Public Comment Periods	168
Public Meetings	173
Citizens' Advisory Committees	179

Public Deliberation	185
An Expanding Array of Options	190
Part V. Conclusions	195
10. Implications for Public Managers, the Public, and Democracy	197
Working with the Public: A Summary Architecture	197
When Roles Overlap: The Public as Citizen, Customer, and Partner	201
A Need for New Skills	207
A New View of Citizenship	208
A Threat to the Public Interest?	210
Citizen, Customer, Partner, and Democracy	212
Appendix. The Design Principles: Guidelines for Working with the Public	215
Principles for Working with the Public as Customers	215
Principles for Working with the Public as Partners	216
Principles for Working with the Public as Citizens	216
References	219
Index	235
About the Author	243