

Contents

Preface to the New Edition ix

Preface to the First Edition xiii

1 Please Don't Feed the Bugbears 1

- 1 The Perennial, Gripping Problem 1
- 2 The Bogeymen 7
- 3 Sphekishness and Other Worries 11
- 4 Overview 18

2 Making Reason Practical 23

- 1 Where Do Reasons Come From? 23
- 2 Semantic Engines, Perpetual Motion Machines, and a Defective Intuition Pump 30
- 3 Reflection, Language, and Consciousness 38
- 4 Community, Communication, and Transcendence 48

3 Control and Self-Control 55

- 1 "Due to Circumstances Beyond Our Control" 55
- 2 Simple Control and Simple Self-Control 57
- 3 Agentless Control and Our Concept of Causation 62
- 4 Agents in Competition 67
- 5 The Uses of Disorder 73
- 6 "Let Yourself Go" 76

4 Self-Made Selves 81

- 1 The Problem of the Disappearing Self 81
- 2 The Art of Self-Definition 88
- 3 Trying Our Luck 100
- 4 Overview 108

5	Acting Under the Idea of Freedom	111
1	How Can You Go On Deliberating at a Time Like This?	111
2	Designing the Perfect Deliberator	118
3	Real Opportunities	126
4	"Avoid," "Avoidable," "Inevitable"	134
6	"Could Have Done Otherwise"	143
1	Do We Care Whether We Could Have Done Otherwise?	143
2	What We Care About	152
3	The Can of Worms	157
7	Why Do We Want Free Will?	167
1	Nihilism Neglected	167
2	Diminished Responsibility and the Specter of Creeping Exculpation	171
3	The Dread Secret Denied	181
	Afterword: Erasmus: Sometimes a Spin Doctor Is Right	189
	Bibliography	207
	Index	219