

Dietrich Buxtehude (c. 1637-1707) was active for nearly forty years as organist of St Mary's Church in Lübeck and was one of the chief figures in North German music of his time. His vocal church music together with his organ music and other instrumental works earn him pride of place among German composers between Heinrich Schütz and J.S. Bach, who studied with Buxtehude in Lübeck as a young man.
