

Contents

ix	ACKNOWLEDGMENTS
1	CHAPTER ONE Indigenous Interruptions: Mohawk Nationhood, Citizenship, and the State
37	CHAPTER TWO A Brief History of Land, Meaning, and Membership in Iroquoia and Kahnawà:ke
67	CHAPTER THREE Constructing Kahnawà:ke as an "Out-of-the-Way" Place: Ely S. Parker, Lewis Henry Morgan, and the Writing of the Iroquois Confederacy
95	CHAPTER FOUR Ethnographic Refusal: Anthropological Need
115	CHAPTER FIVE Borders, Cigarettes, and Sovereignty
147	CHAPTER SIX The Gender of the Flint: Mohawk Nationhood and Citizenship in the Face of Empire
177	CONCLUSION Interruptus
195	APPENDIX A Note on Materials and Methodology
201	NOTES
229	REFERENCES
251	INDEX