

Contents

Introduction	viii
Chapter 1 Everyday Criticality and Thinking Well	1
A necessarily (very) brief survey of critical exemplars	2
Taking a moment to reflect	10
Hindrances to critical thinking	11
Conclusion	18
Chapter 2 Critical Reflection	19
What is critical being?	19
Reflective thinking	21
Reflective writing: the journal. Why do it?	22
How to keep a reflection journal	23
Being in-between	27
A little further advice	31
Conclusion	33
Chapter 3 Critical Analysis of Texts	34
Practice of logic	36
Analogy	37
Generalisation	38
Identify the author's position	41
Note the signals	42
Is it true? Is it useful? What is its value?	44
Further advice for textual analysis	46
Self-evaluative quiz	48
Chapter 4 Creative Critical Thinking	49
Three misconceptions of creativity in universities	49
From imagining to creating, or from imaginative vision to rational insight	50
Creativity and criticality and thinking well	51
Conclusion	66
Chapter 5 Research Practices	67
'Writing: a method of enquiry'	67
'Know thyself': identify your research style	69
Searching the literature	70
Wide reading	72
Close reading	74

The annotated bibliography	77
The critical review	78
The critical literature review	79
Four reminders	81
Integrating annotations	82
Conclusion	82
Chapter 6 Developing Habits of Strength as a Postgraduate	83
Habits of strength	83
Coping with stress	90
Towards creative criticality: 'make haste, not speed'	92
What does pleasure have to do with study?	93
Critical being/critical action: applications of 'everyday criticality'	96
Conclusion	99
Chapter 7 Negotiating the Literature and Joining the Conversation	100
Style is not just a matter of surface impression	101
Matters of style and content in the context of communication and conception	102
How to invigorate both content and style?	103
Thinking well: acts of intellect and imagination	104
Authorial voice, referencing, and critical writing	105
Using your sources effectively	106
Transforming information into knowledge	107
More advice on developing your voice stylishly, but without sacrificing clarity	109
Conclusion	113
Chapter 8 Persuasive Writing: Rhetorical Techniques	115
Words are magic – literally and in reality	117
Rhetoric: the art of persuasion	117
Rhetoric and character	121
Rhetorical devices and strategies	123
Suspense	125
Pace	126
Repetition	127
Combinations	127
Say what you mean ...	127
Punctuation and rhetoric	127

Traps to avoid – most of the time	129
Conclusion	131
Chapter 9 Persuasive Writing: Developing a Narrative	132
Structuring your text as an ongoing story, written as you research	133
Academic writing is a sociable activity	134
Ways of constructing a persuasive text by conversational means	134
'Summary and response'	138
The unfolding narrative approach	141
Argument as story	145
Further style tips	147
Conclusion	149
Chapter 10 Some More Experimental, Playful Forms of Academic Writing	150
Doubt, uncertainty, and risk	151
Factoring 1, 2, and 3 into academic communication	152
Divergent thinking and academic writing	155
Playing with forms and ideas	155
Example of a 'hubbub' game	157
Fictocriticism and play	159
An example of the form, and a move towards greater authorial authenticity	161
Conclusion	164
Concluding Remarks	165
References	167
Index	173