

Contents

List of Tables, Figures, and Boxes	vii
Foreword	xiii
Charles E. Allen
Preface	xv
About the Authors	xix
Introduction to the Second Edition	xxi
Introduction	xxiii
PART I. HOW DO I GET STARTED?	1
1. Who Are Your Clients?	3
2. What Are the Key Questions?	13
3. What Is the Broader Context for the Analysis?	19
4. How Should I Conceptualize My Product?	37
5. What Is My Analytic Approach?	45
6. Can Collaboration Contribute to a Better Answer?	71
PART II. WHERE IS THE INFORMATION I NEED?	85
7. How Do Models Help My Analysis?	87
8. What Types of Information Are Available?	103
9. Can I Trust the Sources?	115
10. How Should I Assess the Reliability of Internet Information?	129
PART III. WHAT IS MY ARGUMENT?	139
11. Are My Key Assumptions Well-Founded?	141
12. Can I Make My Case?	149

13. Did I Consider Alternative Hypotheses?	173
14. How Do I Deal With Politicization?	183
15. How Might I Be Spectacularly Wrong?	195
PART IV. HOW DO I CONVEY MY MESSAGE EFFECTIVELY?	203
16. Is My Argument Persuasive?	205
17. How Should I Portray Probability, Levels of Confidence, and Quantitative Data?	211
18. How Can Graphics Support My Analysis?	227
19. How Do I Present My Message in the Most Compelling Way?	247
20. How Do I Know When I Am Finished?	263
PART V. CASE STUDIES	273
I. Countering the Iranian Nuclear Threat: Stuxnet and Its Broader Implications	275
II. Puzzling Food Poisonings in Germany	285
III. The End of the Era of Aircraft Carriers	295
IV. Financial Crises in the United States: Chronic or Avoidable?	317
V. Yemen: An Expanding Security Threat?	333
Glossary of Terms	347
List of Names	357
Recommended Readings	359
US Government Publications	362
Index	363
The Analyst's Roadmap (Inside Back Cover)	