

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	ix
Contributors	xiii
Series editor's preface	xv
Editors' preface	xvii
List of party abbreviations	xix

PART I

Introduction: the significance of party elites 1

- 1 A framework for the comparative analysis of political parties and party systems in consociational democracy 3
KURT RICHARD LUTHER
- 2 The utility of party and institutional indicators of change in consociational democracies 20
PAUL PENNINGS

PART II

Case studies in comparative perspective 41

- 3 Must what goes up always come down? Of pillars and arches in Austria's political architecture 43
KURT RICHARD LUTHER
- 4 From consociation to federation: how the Belgian parties won 74
KRIS DESCHOUWER

vi Contents

5	Parties, pillars and the politics of accommodation: weak or weakening linkages? The case of Dutch consociationalism	108
	RUDY B. ANDEWEG
6	The odd fellow: parties and consociationalism in Switzerland	134
	PASCAL SCIARINI AND SIMON HUG
7	Israel and the consociational model: religion and class in the Israeli party system, from consociationalism to consensualism to majoritarianism	163
	REUVEN Y. HAZAN
 PART III
	Party dimensions in comparative perspective	189
8	Electoral consequences of (de-)pillarization: the cases of Austria, Belgium and the Netherlands (1945–96)	191
	MÓNICA MÉNDEZ-LAGO
9	The consociational party system	224
	STEVEN B. WOLINETZ
10	‘Prudent leadership’ to successful adaptation? Pillar parties and consociational democracy thirty years on	243
	KURT RICHARD LUTHER AND KRIS DESCHOUWER
	 Bibliography	 264
	Index	283