Contents

Intr	oduction	vii
1	Subjective Rights 1.1 Subjective rights: A disputed concept 1.2 Kant: Private law as a doctrine of subjective rights 1.3 The individualisation of rights 1.4 Marx, legal equality and democracy	1 1 4 10 18
2	Democracy 2.1 Some elements of the modern history of the term 'democracy' 2.2 Democracy as the government of the people, or, 'Was Rousseau a democrat?' 2.3 From Rousseau to Kant 2.4 Critiques of democracy: The people and the rabble	27 27 31 46 51
3	The Democratisation of Democracies 3.1 From civil rights to social rights: The statutorisation of subjective rights 3.1.1 The political people and the nation 3.1.2 The extension of political rights 3.1.3 The invention of social rights: Citizenship as status 3.2 The rights of foreigners 3.2.1 The citizen and the foreigner: The right of world citizenship in Kant 3.2.2 The 'right to have rights'	57 57 57 62 68 77 77 84
4	Democracy Without Demos 4.1 Democracy without demos : From Schmitt to Kant 4.2 Liberal individualism and democracy	91 91 99

Contents

	4.3 Solidarities in struggle: The impossible 'routinisation'4.4 Farewell to communitarianism?	100
	The Future of the Political Subject in the Context of Globalisation 5.1 Citizenship and solidarity 5.2 The denationalisation of citizenship 5.3 New scenes of civic creativity: The city 5.4 New scenes of civic creativity: The world?	121 121 130 136 140
Conc	clusion	147
Bibliography		157
Index	e middless of cert to Boules, they York, Tarette Resident and Recognic A	165