

Contents

Acknowledgments ♦ ix Introduction ♦ i

PART I. THE IMPETUS FOR CHANGE

- 1 Key Concepts Informing Early Conservation Thought ♦ 9
- 2 Wealthy People and the City: An Ambivalent Relationship ♦ 32

PART II. MANLINESS, WOMANHOOD, WEALTH, AND SPORT

- 3 Wealth, Manliness, and Exploring the Outdoors: Racial and Gender Dynamics ♦ 51
- 4 Wealth, Women, and Outdoor Pursuits ♦ 83
- 5 People of Color: Access to and Control of Resources ♦ 109

PART III. WILDLIFE PROTECTION

- 6 Sport Hunting, Scarcity, and Wildlife Protection ♦ 161
- 7 Blaming Women, Immigrants, and Minorities for Bird Destruction ♦ 189
- 8 Challenging Wildlife Regulations and Understanding the Business-Conservation Connections ♦ 224

PART IV. GENDER, WEALTH, AND FOREST CONSERVATION

- 9 Rural Beautification and Forest Conservation: Gender, Class, and Corporate Dynamics ♦ 257
- 10 Preservation, Conservation, and Business Interests Collide ♦ 290
- 11 National Park Preservation, Racism, and Business Relations ♦ 328
- 12 Nation Building, Racial Exclusion, and the Social Construction of Wildlands ♦ 350

Conclusion ♦ 383 Notes ♦ 399 References ♦ 407 Index ♦ 465