

ANALYTICAL TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. WHY POLITICAL ECONOMY?	3
Consider the Situation of Colonel Yakubu Gowon. How Could Colonel Gowon Best Choose Among Alternative Courses of Action?	5
What Could a Political Scientist Advise Colonel Gowon?	7
What Can Economists Advise about Political Change and Development?	12
What Kind of Social Science Model Is Needed for Political Relevance?	15
How Have Political and Social Science Contributed to Such a Model?	18
The State as an Organization—Political Resources—Politics as Interaction and Exchange—Political Entrepreneurship, Infrastructure, and Investment—Propensities—Conflict— Choice
II. THE NEW POLITICAL ECONOMY	26
The Productivity of Politics	29
Political Markets and Politicization	30
Political Resources as the Bases of Power	32
Alternative Uses of Political Resources	33
Coping With and Inducing Social and Economic Change	34
Remaining in Authority in the Present and Future	34
Building Political and Administrative Infrastructure	35
The Necessity of Choice	36
The Statesman's Political Environment	39
Analysis of Sectors	39
Ideologies, Propensities, and Time Horizons	41
Stratification of the Political Community	42
Uses of the New Political Economy	47

III. POLITICAL RESOURCES	49
Uses of Resources	51
Flows of Resources	53
Political Currencies	54
Supplies and Demands	56
The Factors of Political Production	58
Economic Goods and Services	58
Status	60
Information	67
Force	70
Legitimacy	73
Authority	81
Compliance	86
Ambiguous Factors	89
IV. POLITICAL EXCHANGE	92
Markets	95
Nationalization	96
Politicization	98
Supply and Demand	99
Exchange Rates or Price	99
Performance and Sanction	103
Elasticity of Supply and Demand	105
Diminishing Returns—Diminishing Marginal Utility—
The Concept of Elasticity—Comparison of Value
Regime Exchanges with Sectors	109
Status, Wealth, and Authority	110
Legitimacy and Authority	111
Political Behavior	114
Propensities	114
Parameters	116
Bargaining	118
Resource Positions	120
Tactics	121
Strategy	122
Altering the Core Combination—Raising Revenue—
Educational Reform
V. POLITICAL INFLATION AND DEFLATION	136
Price Stability and Regime Stability	137
Political Inflation and Hyper-Inflation	140
Political Deflation and Depression	144
Sector Inflation and Deflation	149

Political Stagnation	150
Anti-Inflationary and Anti-Deflationary Measures	151
Depreciation and Appreciation	155
Monopoly and Monopsony	157

VI. POLITICAL RESOURCE MANAGEMENT 160

Regime Policies	161
Monetary Policy	161
Fiscal Policy	162
Taxation	164
Budget and Plan	167
Disposable Income	171
Productive Distributions of Resources	173
Reduction of Extreme Disparities	173
Equalization of Resources	176

VII. POLITICAL RESOURCE ACCUMULATION 180

Capital Formation	181
Mobilization of Sectors	187
Saving	191
Interest	194
Debt	195
Interest Rates	198
Investment	199
Types of Investment	201
Returns on Investment	202
Entrepreneurship	203

VIII. POLITICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE INFRASTRUCTURE 208

Characteristics of Political and Administrative Infrastructure	209
Political Infrastructure	225
Regime Political Party	225
Auxiliary Organizations	233
Opposition Party	233
Elections	235
Local and Regional Government	235
Ideology	239
Economic Development Plan	241
Other Political Infrastructure	243
Administrative Infrastructure	244
Public Bureaucracy	244
Army	247
Other Administrative Infrastructure	248

Communications Media	249
Education	253
IX. THE APPLICATION OF POLITICAL ECONOMY	256
Political Economy and Public Policy	257
Policy Research as the Verification of
Social Science Theory	258
Explanation in Social Science: Some Cost-Benefit
Considerations	260
Examples of Efforts at Explanation	262
Stimulating Entrepreneurship and Investment in Industries— Achievement Motivation, Rebellion against Tradi-
tional Society, Unbalancing Investments, Economic
Incentives; Reducing Bureaucratic Corruption—Cre-
ating a Pluralistic Society, Calculating Costs and Bene-
fits
Assessing and Choosing Strategies: Implications for Social
Science Research	270
Some Issues of Measurement and Prediction	272
The Significance of Political Resources	274
Some Assumptions of Political Economy	277
Political Man and Intentionality	279
Political Ethics and Political Economy	281
Political Rationality	283
Ethics as Choice	285
REFERENCES CITED	287
AUTHOR INDEX	303
SUBJECT INDEX	307