

Contents

| | |
|---------------------------------------|-----|
| A Few Words About the Polish Language | xii |
|---------------------------------------|-----|

| | |
|----------|---|
| Prologue | 3 |
|----------|---|

PART ONE: EXODUS

| | |
|--|-----|
| ONE: Into the Air | 9 |
| TWO: "This Race Which Would Not Die" | 16 |
| THREE: Poland "Will Fight" | 35 |
| FOUR: "We Are Waiting..." | 56 |
| FIVE: "Sikorski's Tourists" | 74 |
| SIX: "When Will We Start Flying?" | 92 |
| SEVEN: The Battle of Northolt | 109 |
| EIGHT: "My God, They Are Doing It!" | 127 |
| NINE: "The Credit That Is Their Due" | 149 |
| TEN: "The Glamor Boys of England" | 168 |

PART TWO: BETRAYAL

| | |
|---|-----|
| ELEVEN: "The Cold-Blooded Murder of a Nation" | 187 |
| TWELVE: "Are There Any Frozen Children?" | 210 |
| THIRTEEN: "I Can Handle Stalin Better" | 235 |
| FOURTEEN: "Speak of Them Never" | 254 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| FIFTEEN: "The War Is in Poland" | 273 |
| SIXTEEN: A Question of Honor | 286 |
| SEVENTEEN: "People of Warsaw! To Arms!" | 309 |
| EIGHTEEN: "A Tale of Two Cities" | 337 |
| NINETEEN: "A Distant View on the Polish Question" | 354 |
| TWENTY: Light and Darkness | 372 |
| TWENTY-ONE: "For Your Freedom and Ours" | 394 |
| Epilogue | 416 |
| Notes | 429 |
| Bibliography | 467 |
| Acknowledgments | 477 |
| Permissions Acknowledgments | 480 |
| Index | 481 |