

---

Contents

---

About the authors	x
Preface to the eighth edition	xi

PART I

Press history

1

JAMES CURRAN

1 Press history as political mythology	3
2 The struggle for a free press	8
3 Janus face of reform	20
4 Industrialization of the press	28
5 Era of the press barons	44
6 Press under public regulation	68
7 Post-war press: fable of progress	84
8 Press and the remaking of Britain	118
9 Rise of the neo-liberal Establishment	156
10 Moral decline of the press	172

PART II

Broadcasting history

193

JEAN SEATON

11 Reith and the denial of politics	195
12 Broadcasting and the Blitz	216

13	Public service commerce: ITV, new audiences and new revenue	246
14	Foreign affairs: the BBC, the world and the government	258
15	Class, taste and profit	270
16	Managers, regulators and broadcasters	279
17	Public service under attack	294
18	Broadcasting roller-coaster	311
PART III
Rise of new media		345
19	New media in Britain	347
JAMES CURRAN
20	History of the internet	361
JAMES CURRAN
21	Sociology of the internet	380
JAMES CURRAN
22	Social media: making new societies or polarization merchants?	395
JEAN SEATON
PART IV
Theories of the media		409
JEAN SEATON
23	Metabolising Britishness	411
24	Global understanding	429
25	Broadcasting and the theory of public service	444
PART V
Politics of the media		459
26	Industrial folklore and press reform	461
JAMES CURRAN

27 Contradictions in media policy	484
JAMES CURRAN AND JEAN SEATON
28 Media reform: democratic choices	498
JAMES CURRAN
Bibliography	510
Index	547