

CONTENTS

The madness of Ajax	1
1 What is paranoia? Individual (clinical) paranoia	9
Collective (historico-cultural) paranoia	19
2 The beginnings: myth and history	42
Cain's envy	42
The enemy in the Aeneid	43
The development of the relationship between paranoia and politics	45
Columbus's delusion	47
A voice crying in the wilderness: Brother Antonio Montesinos	49
The cross and interest	50
Paranoid law	52
3 European nationalism: from cultural renaissance to paranoia	57
Supervising and mistrusting	57
The pride and suspicion of nations	58
The fantasies underlying national law	61
The imaginary race	65
The place of the Jews	69
The Dreyfus Affair	69
4 Naive persecutors	73
The special nature of America	73
The Black Legend	74
The empty continent	75

	'American exceptionalism' 77
	Moby Dick 77
	Founding principles and purity 78
	The separation of the continents and manifest destiny 80
	War of conquest 81
	Spain and Catholicism 82
	The 'newspaper war' 84
	The United States lands in Asia 85
	The white man's burden 88
5	Darkness over Europe	91
	Great is war 91
	Boredom and waiting 92
	Pandarus' arrow and the first casualty 93
	Suspicion grows 94
	Pre-emptive mobilization 98
	Do railway timetables determine the slaughter? 101
	The politics of Creon 102
	Uncontrollable feelings 104
	More voices crying in the wilderness 106
	The role of the mass media 107
	Suspensions, exaggerations, rumours 110
	The sufferings of Belgium 114
	Italian paranoia 115
	The novelty of atrocities and of the intercontinental dimension 116
	The silence after the gunfire 117
6	Freud, Keynes and the bamboozled man	122
	An American messiah 122
	The fourteen-point dogma 124
	The peace negotiations 125
	Wilson's self-deceptions 126
	The paranoid atmosphere of the negotiations 127
	The offence 129
	Arrogance 130
	The seeds of new paranoia 131
7	Siegfried	134
	The illuminating explanation 134
	The legitimization of paranoid nationalist 'law' 135
	The disappearance of multinational coexistence 136

The stab in the back	138
Waiting for more darkness	141
8 The granite foundation and the hour of idiocy	144
Hitler's revelations	144
The role of Vienna	145
Mein Kampf	146
The apparition of the Jew	148
Other 'logical' steps in Mein Kampf	150
From theoretician to head of state	151
Impatience prevails	152
The choices of death	155
All obstacles are swept away	156
'Who talks about the massacre of the Armenians today?'	159
War at last	161
Definitive omnipotence	165
Absurd calculations	168
Self-burial	169
The need for an enemy	171
Delusion to the end	173
'Total war'	174
The final revelation and the abyss	175
The shadow of Nero	177
9 The man of steel and the final product	183
Stalin: a name with many meanings	183
Character	184
Radical mistrust	186
Allusion and the creation of a self-contained reality	188
Lenin's heritage	189
The gulag	190
Yakov and Nadya	191
The diagnosis of paranoia	192
Some daily habits	193
Similarities and differences with respect to Hitler	193
'Inversion of causes': the leader's mind as the origin of society	197
The massacres	198
The twentieth-anniversary speech	206
The 'denationalizations' and the ideology that lay behind them	207
Unpreparedness for war	208
Counter-attack and the conclusion of the conflict	211
Suspicion hits the Jews	213

	Stalin's death	215
	The paradoxes of paranoid totalitarianism	216
	Final questions	219
10	Fire that feeds fire	227
	War crimes and Allied double standards	227
	Collective paranoia and forms of government	228
	Airborne warfare as total war	229
	Poetry and romantic enthusiasm in the air war	230
	The first bombs of the Second World War	231
	The three phases of Allied bombing	231
	Douhet's predictions are proved wrong	233
	The bombing of Germany	234
	The bombing of Italy	235
11	Further and further west	239
	War against an inferior race	239
	War between different races, total war	240
	The erroneous calculation of pre-emptive attack	242
	The impossibility of isolation	243
	Fear of encirclement	243
	A strategy founded on haste	244
	Suspicion and the missed opportunity	245
	Towards the atomic bomb	246
	Contagious fanaticism	247
	The range of options continues to narrow	248
	Hiroshima	248
	The diary of Michihiko Hachiya	249
	The withdrawal of projections and meeting the enemy	251
	More elation	252
	Nagasaki	252
	Rationalizations	253
	Secrecy	253
	Later justifications	255
	The Tokyo Trials	259
	The reawakening of Ajax	259
	Dr Hachiya's farewell	261
12	A plan for the twenty-first century?	266
	Paranoia and the new century	266
	The Cold War	267
	The disappearance of the Soviet enemy	268

The appearance of the Islamic enemy	269
Paranoia takes the form of a government document	270
The war caused by suspicion	271
The responsibility of those who disseminate paranoid messages	272
The contagiousness of paranoia	274
The impact on civilian life	276
 13 Inconclusive thoughts	 278
Understanding evil	278
Paranoia and psychopathy again	280
Individual, mass and leader	282
Three generations of mass media	283
'The Giant'	284
Dictators	285
Giving back medals	286
Eighty per cent?	288
The abandonment of morality among intellectuals and among the populace	292
Why modern life offers paranoia new spaces	294
The relationship with the -isms	296
Paranoid return	299
Clandestine revolutionary groups	300
The continuity between limited attacks and genocides	302
Acceptance of responsibility and denial	304
Who won?	305
Disarmament and historiography	307
Poems and anthems	309
Monuments	310
Open contradictions	312
Some examples of everyday paranoia	313
Indifference and Europe	314
 Iago's whisper	 318
 Bibliography	 325
Index	340