

Table of contents

Advisory board for Introduction to Discourse Studies	XI
Preface	XIII
CHAPTER 1
Introduction	1
1.1 A rough definition of discourse studies	1
1.2 Aim and structure of this book	2
1.3 The presentation of the material	5
Questions and assignments	7
Bibliographical information	8
Part I. General orientation
CHAPTER 2
The pragmatic framework	13
2.1 Introduction	13
2.2 The Organon model	13
2.3 Speech act theory	16
2.3.1 Types of speech acts and felicity conditions	16
2.3.2 Illocutions in discourse	18
2.4 The cooperative principle	21
2.5 Relevance theory	24
2.6 Politeness theory	28
2.7 Summary	34
Questions and assignments	36
Bibliographical information	39
CHAPTER 3
Discourse in communication	41
3.1 Introduction	41
3.2 Pragmatics and semiotics	41
3.3 Social rules for symbolic interaction	44

3.4	Sender and receiver in communication theory	46
3.5	The discourse situation	49
3.6	The socio-semiotic approach of Functional Grammar	52
3.7	What makes discourse discourse?	55
3.8	Summary	58
	Questions and assignments	60
	Bibliographical information	63

Part II. Backpacking for a journey into discourse studies

CHAPTER 4

Discourse classification	67
4.1	Introduction 67
4.2	Typologies of discourse 67
4.3	Written language and spoken interaction 72
4.4	Genre theory and analysis 74
4.5	Multimodality 78
4.6	Electronic discourse 84
4.6.1	General characteristics of computer-mediated discourse 84
4.6.2	Hypertext 88
4.6.3	Online genres 90
4.7	Summary 92
	Questions and assignments 94
	Bibliographical information 98

CHAPTER 5

Structured content	101
5.1	Introduction 101
5.2	Propositions 101
5.3	Sentence and discourse topics 105
5.4	Macrostructures 109
5.5	Superstructures 113
5.6	Concept-based approaches to discourse content 115
5.7	Summary 119
	Questions and assignments 120
	Bibliographical information 123

CHAPTER 6

Discourse connections	125
6.1 Introduction	125
6.2 Cohesion	125
6.2.1 Types of cohesive ties	126
6.2.2 Referential elements	129
6.3 Coherence	132
6.4 Rhetorical Structure Theory	136
6.5 Discourse relation research	138
6.6 Connectivity theory	140
6.7 Summary	143
Questions and assignments	145
Bibliographical information	149

CHAPTER 7

Contextual phenomena	151
7.1 Introduction	151
7.2 Approaches to context	152
7.3 Deixis	154
7.4 Information management	158
7.4.1 Staging	158
7.4.2 Given and new information	161
7.5 Perspectivization	163
7.6 Implicit meaning	167
7.6.1 Presuppositions	168
7.6.2 Inferences	171
7.7 Summary	174
Questions and assignments	175
Bibliographical information	179

CHAPTER 8

Style and stylistics	181
8.1 Introduction	181
8.2 Form, content and situation	181
8.3 Views on style	184
8.4 Normative and objective analysis	187
8.5 Everyday and literary language	191
8.6 Contemporary approaches to stylistics	194
8.6.1 Corpus stylistics	194
8.6.2 Pragmatic stylistics	197

8.6.3 Cognitive Poetics	201
8.7 Summary	206
Questions and assignments	208
Bibliographical information	211

Part III. Special modes of communication

CHAPTER 9

Conversation analysis	215
9.1 Introduction	215
9.2 Transcription methods	215
9.3 The turn-taking model	217
9.4 Sequential organization	221
9.5 Discourse markers	225
9.6 Summary	228
Questions and assignments	229
Bibliographical information	231

CHAPTER 10

Informative discourse	233
10.1 Introduction	233
10.2 Academic writing as informative discourse	233
10.3 Readability in a formula	237
10.4 The measurement of understanding	240
10.5 Judging discourse quality	242
10.6 The improvement of documents	246
10.7 Summary	248
Questions and assignments	250
Bibliographical information	252

CHAPTER 11

Narratives	253
11.1 Introduction	253
11.2 A philological approach to fairy tales	253
11.3 Sociolinguistic and interactional approaches	255
11.4 The psycholinguistic approach	259
11.5 The organizational approach	261
11.6 Summary	264
Questions and assignments	265
Bibliographical information	266

CHAPTER 12

Argumentation and persuasion 267

- 12.1 Introduction 267
- 12.2 The structure of argumentation 268
- 12.3 The pragma-dialectical approach 270
- 12.4 The social-psychological approach 273
- 12.5 The quality of argumentation in relation to persuasion 278
- 12.6 Summary 281
- Questions and assignments 282
- Bibliographical information 284

Part IV. Special interests

CHAPTER 13

Discourse and cognition 287

- 13.1 Introduction 287
- 13.2 Reading and prior knowledge 288
- 13.3 Aspects of processing 292
- 13.4 Models of comprehension 297
- 13.5 Models of text production 301
- 13.6 Product and process analysis 304
- 13.7 Summary 308
- Questions and assignments 309
- Bibliographical information 312

CHAPTER 14

Discourse and institution 315

- 14.1 Introduction 315
- 14.2 Aspects of institutions 316
- 14.3 Politics 318
- 14.4 Law 322
- 14.5 Bureaucracy 327
- 14.6 News media 331
- 14.7 Health care 337
- 14.8 Summary 340
- Questions and assignments 341
- Bibliographical information 343

CHAPTER 15
Discourse and culture	345
15.1 Introduction	345
15.2 Linguistic relativity	346
15.3 Critical Discourse Analysis	348
15.4 Gender and sexuality	352
15.5 Racism	355
15.6 Cross- and intercultural communication	359
15.7 Summary	363
Questions and assignments	364
Bibliographical information	366
 Key to the questions	 369
 References	 421
 Index	 449