

CONTENTS

Preface	xiii
Abbreviations	xv
Table of Cases	xix
Table of Treaties and Conventions	xl
Table of National Legislation	xliv
Table of International Instruments	xlvii
Table of Statutes of International Tribunals	xlvi

PART I INTRODUCTION

1	FUNDAMENTALS OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW	3
1.1	The notion of international criminal law (ICL)	3
1.2	General features of ICL	4
1.3	The notion of international crimes	11
1.4	Sources of ICL	13
1.5	The historical evolution of international crimes	27
2	GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW	32
2.1	Preliminary remarks	32
2.2	The principle of individual criminal responsibility	33
2.3	The principle of legality of crimes	36
2.4	Articulations of the principle of legality	41
2.5	The principle of legality of penalties	51
3	THE ELEMENTS OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMES	53
3.1	The objective and subjective elements of crimes	53
3.2	The structural elements of international crimes	53
3.3	General features of the subjective element	56
3.4	Substantive rules setting out the mental element required for crimes	57

3.5	General notions of mens rea common to most legal systems of the world	58
3.6	General categories of mens rea: intent	60
3.7	Recklessness	66
3.8	Culpable or gross negligence	70
3.9	The ICC Statute	73
3.10	Judicial determination of the mental element	74

PART II SUBSTANTIVE CRIMINAL LAW

SECTION I INTERNATIONAL CRIMES

4	WAR CRIMES	81
4.1	The notion	81
4.2	The need for a link between the offence and an armed conflict	82
4.3	Establishing whether a serious violation of IHL has been criminalized	84
4.4	The objective elements	87
4.5	The subjective elements	92
4.6	The definition of war crimes in the ICC Statute	94
5	CRIMES AGAINST HUMANITY	98
5.1	The notion	98
5.2	The origin of the notion	101
5.3	The objective elements	109
5.4	The subjective elements	114
5.5	The possible authors	116
5.6	The possible victims	117
5.7	Customary international law and Article 7 of the ICC Statute	123
6	GENOCIDE	127
6.1	The notion	127
6.2	The 1948 Convention on Genocide	127
6.3	Developments in the case law on genocide	131

6.4	The objective elements	133
6.5	The subjective elements	137
6.6	Problematical aspects of genocide	138
6.7	Genocide and crimes against humanity	144
6.8	Article 6 of the ICC Statute and customary international law	146
7	TORTURE AS A DISCRETE CRIME, AND AGGRESSION	148
7.1	Introduction	148
7.2	Torture as a discrete crime	149
7.3	The crime of aggression	152
8	TERRORISM AS AN INTERNATIONAL CRIME	162
8.1	A current misconception: the alleged lack of a generally agreed definition of terrorism	162
8.2	Factors pointing to a generally agreed definition of terrorism in time of peace	164
8.3	The ingredients of international terrorism as a discrete international crime in time of peace	166
8.4	Specific sub-categories of international terrorism as a discrete international crime	169
8.5	International terrorism in armed conflicts: a sub-category of war crimes	171
8.6	International terrorism as a sub-category of crimes against humanity	175
8.7	Summing up	177
8.8	The general question of multiplicity of offences	178

SECTION II MODES OF CRIMINAL LIABILITY

9	PERPETRATION AND JOINT CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE	187
9.1	General	187
9.2	Perpetration	188
9.3	Co-perpetration	189
9.4	Participation in a joint criminal enterprise to commit international crimes	189

10	OTHER MODES OF LIABILITY	214
10.1	Aiding and abetting	214
10.2	Incitement as a form of participation in international crimes	218
10.3	Inchoate crimes: general	219
10.4	Attempt	220
10.5	Planning	225
10.6	Conspiracy	227
10.7	Incitement to genocide	229
10.8	Ordering	230
11	CRIMINAL LIABILITY FOR OMISSIONS	233
11.1	General	233
11.2	Rules imposing a positive obligation to act	234
11.3	Culpable omission of an act mandated by an international criminal rule	235
11.4	The responsibility of superiors	236
SECTION III CIRCUMSTANCES EXCLUDING CRIMINAL LIABILITY
12	JUSTIFICATIONS AND EXCUSES	255
12.1	The distinction between justifications and excuses	255
12.2	ICL: general	258
12.3	Self-defence	259
12.4	Excuses: two main categories	262
12.5	Excuses based on lack of individual autonomy	263
13	OTHER EXCUSES: SUPERIOR ORDER, NECESSITY, DURESS, AND MISTAKE	268
13.1	Excuses where lack of mens rea derives from external circumstances	268
13.2	The question of superior orders: may they be pleaded as a defence?	268
13.3	Necessity and duress	280
13.4	Mistake of fact	290
13.5	Mistake of law	294

14	IMMUNITIES	302
14.1	General: various classes of immunities	302
14.2	Functional and personal immunities provided for in international customary law	303
14.3	The customary rule lifting functional immunities with respect to international crimes	305
14.4	International personal immunities	309
14.5	National personal immunities	314

PART III PROSECUTION AND PUNISHMENT BY INTERNATIONAL COURTS

15	THE ESTABLISHMENT OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL TRIBUNALS	317
15.1	Abortive early attempts (1919–1945)	317
15.2	The Nuremberg and Tokyo Tribunals (1945–1947)	319
15.3	The work of the ILC (1950–1954)	323
15.4	The Post-Cold War ‘new world order’ and the establishment of ad hoc Tribunals (1993–1994)	324
15.5	The drafting and adoption of the Statute of the ICC (1994–1998)	328
15.6	Other criminal tribunals	330
16	INTERNATIONAL VERSUS NATIONAL JURISDICTION	336
16.1	Primacy and complementarity	336
16.2	The primacy of international ad hoc Tribunals	339
16.3	The complementarity of the ICC	342
16.4	The Nuremberg scheme versus the ICC scheme	344
16.5	The need for State cooperation	346
16.6	Models of cooperation	346
16.7	Cooperation of States under the ICTY and ICTR scheme	347
16.8	Cooperation of States under the ICC scheme	349
16.9	The question of surrender of nationals	351

17	THE ADOPTION OF THE ESSENTIAL FEATURES OF THE ADVERSARIAL SYSTEM	353
17.1	The adversarial versus the inquisitorial system: general	353
17.2	How the two models work: a comparison	355
17.3	The transposition of the adversarial model on to the international legal level	366
17.4	The principal elements of the inquisitorial model incorporated into international procedure	371
17.5	Towards a 'mixed' procedural model	376
18	GENERAL PRINCIPLES GOVERNING INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL TRIALS	378
18.1	The nature and role of principles	378
18.2	The principle that judges must be independent and impartial	379
18.3	The presumption of innocence	380
18.4	The principle of fair and expeditious trial	383
18.5	The principle that the accused should be present at his trial	389
19	STAGES OF INTERNATIONAL PROCEEDINGS IN OUTLINE I PRE-TRIAL AND TRIAL	395
(A)	PROSECUTOR'S INVESTIGATIONS AND PRE-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS	395
19.1	General	395
19.2	The setting in motion of international criminal investigations	395
19.3	Conditions the prosecutor must fulfil before initiating an investigation	397
19.4	Conduct of investigations by the prosecutor	400
19.5	Pre-trial proceedings	407
(B)	TRIAL PROCEEDINGS	409
19.6	Case presentation	409
19.7	Rules of evidence	413
19.8	Control of proceedings	417
19.9	Deliberations	418
19.10	Sentencing	420
19.11	Reparation or compensation to victims	422

20	APPEALS AND ENFORCEMENT	424
20.1	General	424
(A)	APPEALS	425
20.2	Appeals against interlocutory decisions	425
20.3	Appeals against judgment or sentence	427
(B)	REVIEW	429
20.4	Review of judgment or sentence	429
20.5	Review of other final decisions	430
(C)	ENFORCEMENT OF SENTENCES	431
20.6	Place of imprisonment	431
20.7	Conditions of detention	431
20.8	Reduction or commutation of sentence and pardon	432
20.9	Supervision of imprisonment	434
21	THE SPECIFICITY OF INTERNATIONAL TRIALS	435
21.1	The need for international trials	435
21.2	Merits of international criminal justice	438
21.3	The main traits of international criminal proceedings	440
21.4	Main problems besetting international criminal proceedings	442
	Index	445