

Contents

Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	xi

PART I

The Paradox of Faith and Works: Reconciling Divine Causality with Human Free-Will and Merit

Chapter 1: Stating the Problem: Human Achievement or Divine Causality?	3
Chapter 2: A History of the Faith-Works Controversy	11
The Apostolic Age: Legalism vs. Gnosticism in the New Testament	12
The Controversy between Augustine and Pelagianism	25
The Reformation: Calvinism, Lutheranism, and the Council of Trent	35
The de Auxiliis Controversy and its Aftermath	40

PART II

A Resolution of this Paradox in the Thought of St. Thomas Aquinas

Chapter 3: Aquinas on Causality in Nature and Grace	51
Distinguishing between Aristotle and Aquinas on the Four Causes	51
God as Final and Efficient Cause of the Human Being	61
God as Quasi-Formal Cause of the Will in Charity	78
Chapter 4: Aquinas on Merit in Nature and Grace	81
The Question of Perseverance: Suggestions for a Different Approach	89
Concluding Remarks: The Present Study and the Challenge of Ecumenical Dialogue in a Post-Modern Society	101
Bibliography:	111
About the Author:	117