

Contents

List of tables	ix
List of boxes	x
Acknowledgements	xi
List of abbreviations	xii

Introduction	1
---------------------	---

The transnational dimension of political struggles over the Communist past	6
Contributions of the sociology of memory	6
An actor-centred sociology of European integration	9
Hypotheses	13

PART I

Parliamentary consecration of an anti-communist grammar	23
--	----

1 Anti-communist memory entrepreneurs in the European assemblies	27
---	----

National roots of the European mobilisations	28
The limits of decommunisation	28
Political conflicts on the Socialist past	30
Sociopolitical profiles of the memory entrepreneurs	33
The historical opponents to Communism	35
The anti-communist 'young guard'	36
Peripheral political actors	40
Investments in a European career	46
At the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe	49
During the European Parliament's 6th term	50
The historical opponents to Communism	56
The anti-communist 'young guard'	56
Peripheral political actors	58

2	Putting Communism on the agenda at the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe	66
	Regulating decommunisation: PACE Resolution 1096	67
	Dispensing justice in compliance with human rights	68
	Blocking the text in plenary session	70
	At the core of the debate: lustration	72
	Condemning 'communist totalitarian crimes': PACE Resolution 1481	77
	The EPP picks up the anti-communist cause	77
	Relays at PACE	77
	The European Union fails to respond	79
	Conflicts over the existence and the scope of the report	80
	The opponents' obstructionist strategies	80
	Assigning the proper rapporteur	82
	A fiercely negotiated interpretation of Communism	83
	Plenary-session discussions and vote	84
	Clear ideological divides	85
	National interpretations of Communism	88
	Adopting Resolution 1481	89
3	Extending the anti-communist struggle to the European Parliament	95
	Acknowledging Central and Eastern European history	96
	Inaudible requests?	96
	Aligning interests in favour of the 'Yalta Resolution'	98
	A conflictive agenda item	99
	Criticising Communism or celebrating European integration?	101
	Partisan and national voting patterns	105
	Asserting the equivalence of Nazi and Communist crimes	106
	Intensifying mobilisations	107
	Constitution of an antagonistic coalition at the PES	107
	21 April 2008 debate	109
	Written declaration about 23 August 1939	114
	The Prague Declaration, June 2008	115
	The resolution on European conscience and totalitarianism	116
	The EPP initiative	116
	Legitimacy conflicts	119
	The PES's tactical play	121
	Voting patterns	123

PART II

Anti-communist mobilisations beyond transnational assemblies 131

4 The limited convertibility of anti-communist parliamentary resolutions 133

Specifying Communist crimes: the Holodomor 134

An interpretation dispute goes international 134

Ukrainian diplomatic initiatives 135

Imposing the Russian view in international assemblies 136

The Russian delegation's play at PACE 137

Two competing agenda items 137

Open conflict between the two rapporteurs 139

Victory of the Russian interpretation of the Great Famine 141

Debates in the European Parliament over the 'genocide' qualification 144

The PES's conditions 144

Uniqueness of the Holocaust 146

Uncertain political benefits 149

Self-referential documents at PACE 150

Little visibility in the Assembly 150

Limited national resonance 151

Scarce national political benefits for MEPs 153

The 'battle for Poland's image' at the EP 153

The EP's contribution to the fall of Communism 154

Political repercussions in Poland 155

A variable impact on European careers 157

The role of rapporteur at PACE as a career accelerator 157

The variety of MEP trajectories 159

5 Remembrance as a substitute for justice: The 'Europe for Citizens' programme 165

Inventing a 'remembrance policy' (2004–2007) 166

Taking hold of the 'critical situation' of 2004–2005 166

Arousing citizens' identification with Europe 167

Consolidating the EU's symbolic policies 168

Including Stalinism in the European historical memory (2005–2007) 170

Remembrance, from 'culture' to 'active citizenship' 170

The marginality of remembrance in the EfC programme 172

Failure to judicialise the Socialist crimes (2005–2010)	174
'Communist crimes' and negationism (2005–2007)	174
A framework decision against racism and xenophobia	174
Exiting the crisis by calling on experts	176
Closing the judiciary avenue (2008–2010)	179
Carlos Closa Montero's study	180
Closing the debate with the Reding report	181
Extending the scope of the EfC programme (2011–2013)	183
Growing importance of the remembrance strand	184
The CULT Committee's weak negotiating position	186

6 Advocating the cause of the victims of Communism 195

Two intertwined networks	196
The 'Reconciliation of European Histories' group	196
Constituting an 'informal intergroup'	197
A homogeneous recruitment	198
The Platform of European Memory and Conscience	199
The 'Prague Process'	200
Circulating the anti-communist grammar	202
The 'victim of Communism' figure	204
Individual and collective mobilisations at the EP	205
Inese Vaidere's awareness-raising actions	205
Marek Migalski's own-initiative report	208
The REH group's activities	211
Productions for the general public	212
The reader for high schools 'Memory of Totalitarianism in Europe'	213
The travelling exhibition 'Totalitarianism in Europe'	214
Calls for prosecution of Communist crimes in the EU	215
National impetus and European demands	216
The 'Justice 2.0' campaign	219

Conclusion 229

Index 236