

CONTENTS

Foreword	xi
Alice C. Hudson
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv
SECTION I: IN THE BEGINNING
Chapter 1. Background	3
What Is a Map?	4
Why Bother to Catalog Sheet Maps?	6
Chapter 2. Introduction to Map Cataloging	9
A Good Way to Begin	9
The Concept of "Main Map"	11
Chapter 3. Necessary Tools of the Trade	19
Basic Cataloging Tools	19
Essential Tools	20
Helpful Tools	22
Chapter 4. Sources of Information	27
Chief Source of Information	27
Prescribed Sources of Information	28
SECTION II: CODED FIELDS
Chapter 5. Cartographic-Specific Fixed Fields	33
Chapter 6. General Fixed Fields	35

Chapter 7. Coded Variable Fields	39
Mandatory Coded Fields for Cartographic Materials	39
Coded Variable Fields That Are Required When Applicable	42
Optional Coded Fields for Cartographic Materials	43
SECTION III: DESCRIPTION OF THE MAP
Chapter 8. Main Entry and Statement of Responsibility	51
Main Entry Under Personal Author	51
Main Entry Under Corporate Body	52
Main Entry Under Title	53
“Emanating from” and Its Relationship to the Statement of Responsibility	54
Copyright Holders As Responsible Parties	57
Terms That Indicate Responsibility for a Map	59
“Prominence” and Its Relation to Statement of Responsibility	61
Summary	63
Chapter 9. Providing a Title for the Record	65
When Only One Title Exists	65
Choosing a Title When There Is More Than One	65
Providing for Additional Titles and/or Different Ways to Read the Chosen Title	66
The “Scattered Title” Phenomenon and How to Handle It	68
When to Use a Collective Title As Primary Title	71
What to Do with an Untitled Map	72
Other Title Circumstances	72
Providing a “Source of Title” Note	72
Chapter 10. Edition	75
Editions to Individual Sheets in a Map Series	76
Uncertainty Regarding an Edition Statement	76
Chapter 11. Mathematical Data Area	79
Scale Information	80
Projection Information	94
Statement of Coordinates	94

Chapter 12. Publication Information	109
Place of Publication	109
Name of Publisher, Distributor, etc.	111
Publication Date	112
Tracing for Cartographic Publisher	116
Chapter 13. Physical Description Area	117
Terminology	117
Cartographic Specific Material Designations (SMDs)	121
How Many Maps Are There? (Field 300, Subfield "a")	122
Other Physical Details (Field 300, Subfield "b")	132
Dimensions (Field 300, Subfield "c")	135
Chapter 14. Notes in the Record	147
Who Benefits from Including Notes in the Record?	147
Order and "Categories" of Notes	148
Notes to Justify Providing Added Entries	150
Examples of Notes	151
SECTION IV: OTHER ACCESS POINTS
Chapter 15. Classification Using the LC G-Schedule	157
Components of the Library of Congress Call Number	157
Creating a Library of Congress Call Number	167
Conclusion	168
Chapter 16. A Quick Look at Subject Analysis for Maps	171
Subject Analysis for Sheet Maps	173
Geographic Subject Headings	176
Geographic Subdivisions for Topical Subject Headings	179
Conclusion	183
Chapter 17. Added Entries in the Record	185
Other Personal Names	186
Other Corporate Bodies	186

Other Titles	187
Tracing for Cartographic Publishers	187
Other Potential Added Entries	188
Justification for an Added Entry	188
SECTION V: HISTORICAL SHEET MAPS AND SPECIAL CASES	191
Chapter 18. Historical Maps—Specific Points to Consider	193
Main Entry	194
Determining the Title Proper	194
Statement(s) of Responsibility	195
Mathematical Data	196
Publication or Production Information	199
Physical Description Changes	203
Notes Unique to and Needed for Historical Maps	204
Subject Subdivision Practice to Emphasize the Historical Aspect	206
Other Subject Practices of Note	207
Conclusion	209
Chapter 19. Special Formats and Situations	211
Wall Maps, Including Those Mounted on Rollers	211
Map Series and Collections—Some Further Comments and Suggestions	212
Texts, Indexes, and Other Supplementary Items	219
Facsimiles, Photocopies, and Assorted Reproductions	220
Appendix. Basic Maps Tagging Exercises	223
“Proj:” Fixed Field and 034 Mathematical Data Codes	223
052 Field (Geographic Area Code)	224
300 Field (Physical Description)	225
Answer Sheet	227
Bibliography	229
Index	233