

Contents

Acknowledgements

vii

1	The Public Perspective: An Introduction	1
1.1	Why Public Justification?	3
1.2	The Need for an Ethics of Belief	5
1.3	Book Outline	7
2	Public Reasoning and Agreement	13
2.1	Liberals and Justification	13
2.2	Three 'Modes' of Liberal Justification	14
2.3	Justification and Agreement	16
2.4	Rawls and Shared Agreement	17
2.5	Gaus and Joint Agreement	22
2.6	The Practice of Public Reasoning	26
3	The Ethics of Belief and the Liberal Tradition	35
3.1	Liberalism, Reasons and Beliefs	35
3.2	Foundationalism versus Coherentism	38
3.3	Alethic Obligation	43
3.4	Beliefs in a Political Discourse	45
3.5	Different Opinions and the Ambiguity of Belief	48
3.6	The Method of Probability	51
3.7	What Probability Can Do	54
3.8	What Probability and Evidence Cannot Do	60
3.9	The Ethics of Belief and Its Limits	65
4	Having Reasons and Giving Reasons	71
4.1	From Locke to Contemporary Theories of Consensus	71
4.2	Political Uses of the 'Reasonable'	73

4.3	Galileo: Proof, Reasons and Consensus	77
4.4	What Makes a Belief 'Publicly Givable'?	83
4.5	The Reasons That We Have and the Reasons That We Give	90
5	Facing Disagreement	97
5.1	Justification and the Ethics of Belief	97
5.2	Beyond Factual Beliefs	103
5.3	Meaning Variance	105
5.4	Plural Values and Comparability	107
5.5	Argument Breakdown	111
5.6	Inconclusive Justification	112
6	Equal Freedom	121
6.1	Public Justification and Freedom	121
6.2	The Non-Specific Value of Freedom	127
6.3	A Natural Right to Freedom	131
6.4	Defending Equal Freedom	134
6.5	First Things First: Freedom	136
7	Liberal Multiculturalism	143
7.1	What Is the Value in Cultural Difference?	143
7.2	Giving Reasons to Some	145
7.3	Equality and Difference	151
7.4	Groups and Life Experiments	158
7.5	Toleration	161
8	Conclusions	169
	Bibliography	173
	Index	183
	About the Author	187