

Contents

Key individuals	x
List of figures	xi
List of tables	xii
Notes on Japanese names and dates	xiii
Preface to the English edition	xiv
Preface	xvi
About the author	xx
About the translators	xxi
 1 The political characteristics of the Tokugawa political system	 1
Comparisons of the West and the Tokugawa Japan	1
Sixteenth-century Japan and the West	1
Western pluralism	3
The centralism of the Tokugawa political system	4
The issue of legitimacy	5
Easy collapse, easy unification	7
Legacies of the Tokugawa Japan	7
The peace dividend	7
The samurai ethos	8
 2 Responding to the West	 11
Open the country or keep it closed?	11
Japanese perception of the outside world	11
Expectations placed on the shogunal leadership	13
The issue of imperial sanction for the treaty and the shogunal succession	17
The unrest of the Bakumatsu	18
Outbreak of the “Revere the Emperor, Expel the Barbarian” movement	18
The search for and collapse of a shogunate–domain alliance framework	20
The collapse of the shogunate	22
The conditions necessary for a “low-cost” revolution	22

3 Building the Meiji state	24
Establishing a centralized government	24
Securing wider support	24
Concentrating power	24
Establishing the foundations of power: military affairs	26
Establishing the foundations of power: finances	27
Creating "citizens"	28
Creating a national foundation: introducing Western civilization	28
Mobilizing human energy	30
4 Rise of opposition	34
Establishing foreign relations and the samurai revolt	34
The international order and modernity	34
Seikanron	36
Rise of the antigovernment groups	37
Appeasement and its limits	37
The Satsuma Rebellion	41
The freedom and people's rights movement	42
Development of the people's freedom and rights movement	42
The 1881 Political Crisis	43
The peak and decline of the people's rights movement	44
5 Creation of the Meiji constitutional structure	46
Enactment of the Meiji Constitution	46
The road to constitutional enactment	46
A Prussian-style constitution	48
Ancillary systems for the constitution	50
Characteristics of the Meiji Constitution	51
Two views of the emperor	53
Taking on treaty revision	53
The treaty revision issue	53
The Daidō Danketsu movement	55
6 The establishment of parliament	57
Hanbatsu-party relations in the early Diet sessions	57
The launch of parliament	57
Transcendentalism	57
Aspects of the early Diet sessions	59
The transformation of "relief for the people"	60

Hanbatsu-party relations following the First Sino-Japanese War	62
Postwar expansion	62
The Ōkuma-Itagaki Cabinet	65
The Yamagata Cabinet	67
The establishment of the Seiyūkai	69
7 The First Sino-Japanese and Russo-Japanese Wars	70
The First Sino-Japanese War	70
The line of sovereignty and the line of interest	70
The Sino-Japanese confrontation over Korea	70
Achieving revision of the unequal treaties	73
The First Sino-Japanese War	74
The partition of China	75
The Open Door Note	76
The Russo-Japanese war	77
The Hundred Days Reform and the Boxer Rebellion	77
The Anglo-Japanese Alliance	77
The Russo-Japanese War	79
8 Imperial expansion	81
The annexation of Korea	81
Japan's Manchuria policy	83
The Manchurian issue and international relations	83
The development of dollar diplomacy and Russo-Japanese rapprochement	86
The First World War and Japan	88
The Xinhai Revolution	88
The Twenty-One Demands and the anti-Yuan policy	89
The Terauchi Cabinet and its China policy	90
The Siberian Intervention and the Nishihara Loans	91
9 The development of party government	93
Hanbatsu-party relations following the Russo-Japanese War	93
From Itō to Saionji	93
The Keien era and the hanbatsu	95
The Keien era and the parties	97
Hanbatsu-party relations during the Taishō period	100
The Taishō Political Crisis	100
Hanbatsu and parties during the First World War	102
The failure of the triangular parties theory	103

10	International cooperation and party cabinets	106
	The Hara Cabinet 106
	Formation of the Hara Cabinet 106
	After Hara's death 108
	The Washington system 109
	Creation of the Washington system 109
	The collapse of the Washington system 113
	The era of party cabinets 114
11	The rise of the military	117
	The Manchurian incident 117
	Disarmament and the modernization of the military 117
	The rise of the Shōwa military factions 119
	The Manchurian Incident and Japanese withdrawal from the League of Nations 122
	The February 26 incident 124
	International relations after the departure from the League of Nations 124
	The Saitō and Okada Cabinets 126
	Factional conflict within the army 128
12	The collapse of the empire	131
	The Second Sino-Japanese War 131
	Formation of the Hirota Cabinet 131
	From Ugaki to Konoe 133
	The Second Sino-Japanese War and general mobilization 134
	A new order in East Asia 135
	The Pacific War 137
	The outbreak of the Second World War 137
	The road to the Pacific War 138
	The collapse of the empire 141
13	Defeat, occupation, and peace treaty	143
	Early occupation policies 143
	Defeat 143
	Occupation 146
	Demilitarization and democratization 147
	Politics under the occupation 150
	The Cold War and peace treaty 153
	A shift in occupation policy 153
	Toward peace treaty 154

14 The Development of the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP)	156
High economic growth	156
The creation of the 1955 system	156
The Kishi Cabinet and the revision of the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty	158
The Ikeda and Satō Cabinets	161
LDP politics	163
The development of factions	163
The LDP and bureaucracy in policy decisions	165
15 Changes in the international order and the end of the Cold War	167
Japanese politics in the years of turbulence	167
Changes in international relations	167
The Tanaka Cabinet and foreign relations	169
Parity in the number of conservatives and reformists	170
The consolidation of identity as a member of the West	171
A new international responsibility	173
16 Japan's colonies and their fates	176
Before 1945	176
Taiwan	177
Korea	179
Manchuria	181
After 1945	183
After the defeat	183
Postwar Taiwan	183
Postwar Korea	184
Postwar Japan and its former colonies	186
Bibliography	188
Chronology	207
Index	259